IOC Accepts Proposal For Taiwan

MONTREAL (CP) — The International Olympic Committee executive board bowed Sunday to the Canadian government's demand that Taiwanese athletes not be allowed to compete in the summer Games under the name of the Republic of China.

The executive recommended that the 75 members of the IOC, who are to meet Tuesday in general assembly here, accept a proposal that Taiwan athletes compete under the Olympic flag rather than their own in the Games, which begin Saturday.

But the Taiwanese have threatened to pull out of the Games if the recommendation is accepted.

IOC President Lord Killanin told a news conference that "this is an extremely unfortunate day in Olympic history and I'm sorry that it had to happen at the beginning of the Montreal Games."

Glen Shortliffe, special assistant to the external affairs minister, said in Ottawa Sunday night that "we are very pleased that the IOC executive board has found a solution the board feels is consistent with its aims and which is satisfactory to Canada."

However, some Olympic officials in Montreal expressed bitter feelings.

Harold Wright, president of the Canadian Olympic Association, said: "This is the blackest day in Canada's history.

"We welcome the youth of any country into the Olympic movement, but not the politicians."

Philip Krumm, president of the United States Olympic Association, said a "cold and caculating look" will be taken at whether his country's athletes will participate in the Montreal Games following the IOC board's decision.

Meanwhile, a possible boycott of the Games by African countries gained momentum Sunday when Mauritius became the second member of the Organization of African Unity OAU to announce it will not participate because of New Zealand's presence.

OLYMPIC TV WALK OUT

MONTREAL (CP) — Technicians of Teleglobe Canada walked off the job today in a strike which could affect transmission of Olympic television and radio programs to areas outside North America.

Union officials said about 350 technicians walked off the job for at least 24 hours, and warned that the strike may be extended indefinitely if the company does not reopen talks.

Not all the problems connected with the Olympic Games in Montreal are of the political variety. For instance, officials are worried about a leak in the swimming pool — in the roof — and won't know if it is repaired until heavy rain falls. Page 14.

Mike Taafe, somewhat of a forgotten man this season in the outfield of Victoria Bates, banged out seven hits to help Bates sweep four weekend games in the Pacific Coast Men's Fastball League and all but clinch first place. Page 14.

Another Victorian, John Alexander, won two events at the Canadian closed rowing championships in Ontario and two University of Victoria players helped British Columbia to the national junior rugby championship at Winnipeg. Page 13.

George Knudson made it three victories in four starts on the Canadian professional golf tour Sunday when he steadied his game on the last nine holes and edged Kelowna's Dave Barr to win his fourth Canadian Professional Golfers' Association title. Page 15.

Sandra Palmer and JoAnne Carner were playing off today for the U.S. women's Open championship after finishing in a deadlock Sunday after 72 holes; and New Zealander John Lister became the first foreign player to win this year on the U.S. men's golf tour. Page 15.

Anti-Inflation Act Legal, Court Rules

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada ruled today that the federal Anti-Inflation Act is constitutional.

The court made the decision in a 7 to 2 judgment; however it ruled that the Ottawa-Ontario anti-inflation agreement is unconstitutional.

The ruling against Ontario was unanimous at 9 to 0.

The judgments mean that Ottawa's anti-inflation program, which last fall placed the country under three years of selective wage and price controls, is legal and will continue.

However the Ottawa-Ontario agreement, which placed provincial public servants under the wage jurisdiction of the federal anti-inflation board, is invalid.

This means that Ontario, now with a minority Progressive Conservative government, must have legislative approval for the agreement if it wants it to remain in effect.

The Anti-Inflation Act oversteps provincial powers outlined in the British North America Act, the country's constitution. However the BNA Act allows this in emergency situations which require Ottawa to act to maintain peace, order and good government.

The key point in the constitutional argument was whether an emergency did exist when the anti-inflation program was introduced.

Chief Justice Bora Laskin, writing the majority decision, said Ottawa proceeded from legislative power bases which entitle it to wage war on inflation. He said the circumstances justified it using general power "to extend its embrace as it has done."

The chief justice said the act does not invade provincial legislative jurisdiction.

He said the court would be unjustified in concluding that Parliament did not have a rational basis for using a measure which "was temporarily necessary to meet a situation of economic crisis imperilling the well-being of the people of Canada as a whole and requiring Parliament's stern intervention in the interests of the country as a whole."

The fact that there may have been past periods of crisis in which similar action was not taken, was beside the point.

Inflation, he added, is a monetary phenomenon and monetary policy is within the jurisdiction of the federal government. Also, Ottawa had the power to regulate trade and commerce.

The case arose last March when teachers in Renfrew, Ont., 70 miles west of Ottawa, challenged the Ottawa-Ontario agreement. They said Ontario enacted its side of the agreement by a cabinet order and did not get legislative approval.

Their lawyers argued that the agreement changes provincial wage laws, and this could be done only by passage of a bill.

Justice Minister Ron Basford, seeing that this challenge ultimately would drag the Anti-Inflation Act into the courts, decided to ask for an immediate high court review to save time and money.

The chief justice said the agreement imposes guides and sanctions on the provincial public service, "thereby altering the existing law of Ontario. . . ."

"I am unable to appreciate how the provincial executive . . . can accomplish such a change."

Newfoundland is in a similar position because it also

TRUDEAU: I'M HAPPY WITH THE RULING

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau entered a meeting with labor leaders today with new confidence following the Supreme Court decision that the Anti-Inflation Act is constitutional.

"I'm very happy," he told reporters on the way into a meeting on the economy with leaders of the two-million-member Canadian Labor Congress.

"Now that the court has decided, everyone will get behind the controls and make them work."

CLC president Joe Morris declined any immediate comment. The CLC, which has been fighting the selective wage and price controls program, was among those labor groups who appeared before the court to argue that the law was unconstitutional.

Chiefs Fret Over Chases

The question of high-speed police chases will likely be discussed this September by B.C. police chiefs.

The issue has come into focus as a result of the death of an elderly motorist whose car was struck by a speeding police cruiser.

A provincial investigation is being carried out into the death.

Victoria police chief John Gregory said today the topic is expected to be on the agenda of the B.C. Association of Chief Constables when they meet in Kamloops.

Gregory's announcement came as four urban police departments were canvassed on their policy regarding high speed chases.

The consensus: police from all of the departments are urged to use their common sense and discretion to avoid endangering life and limb.

Gregory said his officers are required to follow the Motor Vehicle Act in the operation of emergency vehicles, and to use their common sense if a potential pursuit confronts them.

"Beyond that I don't think we've done studies or compared (ours) with other policies.

"If we say there will be no high speed chases, all a criminal has to do is speed up and get away . . . If you capture a criminal without anyone getting hurt you're a hero; if you don't you're a bum," Gregory said.

Deputy Chief Rick Avison, of Saanich, said pursuits at high speed are "a logical thing. We don't encourage it, but it's up to a man's discretion. We would naturally require assistance and roadblocks, with the co-operation of other departments and upisland RCMP detachments."

Saanich has both the Trans-Canada Highway and Patricia Bay Highway to contend with in its boundaries, offering greater opportunity for high speed pursuits.

Avison said with arrangements between departments it is no longer an expected thing for a police car to pursue an

KILLER FOR $50?

OTTAWA (CP) — Simma Holt told the Commons today that the cost of hiring a paid killer in Vancouver has diminished in the last decade along with the threat of state execution as a punishment for murder.

During the 1950s and 1960s the cost of hiring a contract murderer ranged from $2,000 to $2,500. But a killer now will do the job for between $50 and $500, she said.

Amin Cuts Arab Ties, Seeks Israeli Links

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Ugandan President Idi Amin, praising the Israeli raid on Entebbe Airport as a "very good" military operation, says he has severed his ties with Arab guerrilla groups, an Israeli newspaper reported.

The newspaper Ma'Ariv said Sunday Amin made the remarks in a telephone call Friday to his former military adviser, reserve Col. Baruch Bar Lev.

"Not as a politician but as a professional army man, I must tell you that the (Israeli) army) action was very good," Amin was quoted as saying. "Your commando is very good."

Amin reportedly said he has cut off relations with the guerrilla organizations because of complications arising from the Entebbe hijack drama.

"I don't want anything to do with them," he told Bar Lev, according to Ma'Ariv. "You can tell (Premier Yitzhak) Rabin and the Israeli government that I have cut off relations with them and I am going to announce this to the press."

Israeli officials said on the weekend at least two guerrillas involved in the hijacking were close associates of international terrorist Ilich Ramirez Sanchez, also known as "Carlos."

The officials said Wadih Haddad, operations chief of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, masterminded the June 27 raid.

Meanwhile in London, several members of Parliament attacked the U.K. government today for sending a message of condolence to Amin last week on the deaths of 20 Ugandan soldiers killed.

Wanted Man Shot By Police

MISSION (CP)—An armed man wanted on a Canada-wide warrant for a weapons charge died in a hail of gunfire Saturday night during a con frontation with RCMP following a high-speed car chase.

Peter Patrick Turchak, 36, died of a gunshot wound to the upper chest, but it was not clear whether he actually fired at police. Officers recovered two shotguns and a .30-30 rifle from Turchak's car.

"They (the pursuing officers) were aware that he was in possession of a weapon, I'll say that at least," an RCMP spokesman said Sunday. "Whether he (Turchak) fired or not will be very important later on."

Turchak had tried to outdistance Constable H. G. Gorsline, 25, in an RCMP freeway patrol car after the officer attempted to stop him for speeding on Highway 99. The chase reached speeds of 100 m.p.h.

The suspect vehicle left the freeway and eventually turned into a dead-end street in a subdivision in this municipality south of Vancouver.

BILINGUAL BY '78

MONTREAL (CP) — The aim of the federal transport department is to have full bilingual air traffic control in Quebec by the end of 1978, Transport Minister Otto Lang said during the weekend.

Speaking on radio station CFCF, Lang said a full bilingual force would be "sufficiently complicated and could involve slightly different working conditions."

Members of Canadian Air Traffic Control Association oppose implementation of bilingualism on the grounds it constitutes a safety hazard.

"The problem involves personal relationships among people working together," he said. "And even now if I do anything that makes one group smile I can be assured the other will be frowning."

The Elderly: Age Brings Happiness to Most

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

They are retired and almost all of them like it, most own their own homes, worry about money, are satisfied with social services and split between Social Credit and NDP.

A random sampling of opinions from senior citizens across B.C. earlier this year by a team of sociologists from the University of Victoria produced this general picture as well as other details.

Focus of the survey, compiled from 730 completed questionnaires, was the seniors' view of social services available to them. The report was prepared by sociologists Daniel Koenig, Trevor Proverbs and Cassie Doyle.

Nine out of 10 respondents said they were satisfied with accessability of local shopping, 89 per cent with medical and hospital facilities, 87 per cent were satisfied with churches, 74 per cent with activity centres for senior citizens and 69 per cent with cultural facilities and transportation services.

A whopping 94 per cent of them reported they were satisfied with their lives as a whole.

While senior citizen centres were available to three out of four respondents, they were being used by only one out of three answering the questionnaire. Principal reasons given for not using the centres were: not knowing people there, difficulty in getting there, not liking the activities and not enough money.

Telephone contact service, available to 43 per cent, was used by 16 per cent. Meals on Wheels, available to 56 per cent, was used by 7 per cent of the sample and homemaker services available to 47 per cent was used by 8 per cent.

On the question of government support for various services, the seniors ranked subsidies for housing and Meals on Wheels as most important.

Similarly almost three-quarters of those replying owned their own home, 14 per cent rented, 8 per cent lived with relatives and the remaining 3 per cent in retirement homes.

Financially, 69 per cent of seniors figured their standard of living had stayed about the same over the past few years. Their average monthly budget was $387 and they estimated they would need another $118 a month to comfortably meet their various expenses.

Of the 85 per cent who held pharmacare cards, cost of their prescriptions averaged $7 a month.

Political party identification divided this way: provincially 31.4 per cent preferred Social Credit, 29.2 per cent the NDP, 8.9 per cent the Progressive Conservatives and 5.5 per cent the Liberals. Federally, 31.9 per cent preferred the Conservatives, 19.5 per cent the NDP, 15.9 per cent the Liberals, 6.4 per cent Social Credit.

"The days of the 100 m.p.h. pursuit are pretty well gone by the wayside," Avison said.

Discretion and "extreme caution" are urged on Saanich patrol officers, he said. "I've been through it many times myself, and it's not something I've enjoyed."

The deputy said in matters involving a real emergency, police cars are required to stop at controlled intersections, despite the fact they may be displaying emergency lights and sounding a siren.

Oak Bay inspector Jack Groves also cited the emergency vehicle requirements of the Motor Vehicle Act regarding public safety and said officers are counselled to use discretion about high speed.

He noted Oak Bay has no highways to contend with.

Policemen are urged to size up a situation and weigh its possible outcome before giving way to high speed chasing.

"Our members are aware of what can happen and use common sense. We don't encourage it; we're all concerned for the public safety, for ourselves and for the person being pursued," Groves said.

In Esquimalt Staff Sgt. Jim Owens said it is hard to lay down policy because every situation is different, with a lot depending upon the time of day, whether it is dark or daylight, and other driving conditions.

Patrol officers must make the most of defensive driving and they are urged to be cautious. If speeds of more than 30 m.p.h. are indicated, emergency siren and lights must be used, Owens said.

Welfare Cheque Raise in October

Welfare payments to single-parent families, two-parent families with an unemployable breadwinner and 55 to 60-year-olds will increase in October, Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm said Sunday.

The increases will be "significant," the minister said, but he will not disclose the amount of the increases until a schedule now being drafted is approved by cabinet.

The increases will go to cabinet for approval sometime in August, he said.

The increases are part of an adjustment in welfare arrangements under the Guaranteed Available Income for Need Act was passed by the legislature June 22.

Vander Zalm said the federal government gave its approval to the increases about 10 days ago and approval from the provincial cabinet should be relatively easy, he said.

"Ottawa was the big stumbling block. I foresee no difficulty now."

The increases are to make up for the effects of inflation in the past two years.

Senior citizens will not get the increases.

Ont. Cabinet Set to Act

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario cabinet was called into emergency session today after the ruling by the Supreme Court of Canada that Ontario's anti-inflation board agreement with the federal government is unconstitutional.

Following the meeting, Premier William Davis is expected to announce the recall of the legislature within 48 hours.

At the session, sources said, the government will introduce legislation legalizing the agreement with the federal government.

The legislation is not expected to contain any provision for a provincial anti-inflation board, as has been urged by the opposition New Democrats and Liberals.

New Democrats in the minority legislature are expected to oppose the legislation. The Liberals are expected to announce their position after a caucus meeting prior to the expected recall of the legislature.

Jim Renwick (NDP—Toronto Riverdale) said in an interview the court's decision was not unexpected by the New Democrats.

Renwick, who had correctly predicted the court would rule 9-0 against Ontario, said it would be unwise to outline the party's position on whether it would support government legislation until caucus has a chance to meet.

The party's position will depend on what action the government intends to take.

He said he told Attorney-General Roy McMurtry last Oct. 30 in writing that the proposed agreement with the federal government was unconstitutional.

The NDP reaffirmed that stand when the government opted into the anti-inflation program through a cabinet order-in-council Jan. 13, he added.

Liberal spokesman Vernon Singer, who argued last year that an order-in-council agreement with the federal government would be illegal, said his own inclination would be to support retroactive legislation.

But, he said, he was mulling over the possibility of adding an amendment calling for the province to set up its own provincial board in the near future—possibly by Sept. 1.

Singer said he would discuss the matter with his colleagues when the Liberal caucus meets.

General Strike 'Closer'

EDMONTON (CP) — Reg Basken, president of the Alberta Federation of Labor (AFL), said today the Supreme Court of Canada ruling upholding the constitutionality of the Anti-Inflation Act pushes the likelihood of a national general strike closer to reality.

"It is not surprising that the supreme court has supported the position of the federal government," Basken said in a prepared statement.

However the decision would not change the course of action the labor movement has "staked out," he said.

used a cabinet order to enter an anti-inflation agreement with Ottawa. However, that province has a majority government and can pass a bill authorizing the agreement without much problem.

Only one province, Saskatchewan, has yet to sign an antiflation agreement. The others, excluding Ontario and Newfoundland, all back their agreements with legislative authority.

The two dissenters on the main constitutional point are both Quebecers — Mr. Justice Jean Beetz and Mr. Justice Louis-Philippe de Grandpre.

Justice Beetz, writing the dissent, said the courts must be more careful not to add "hitherto unnamed powers of a diffiuse nature to the list of federal powers."

He said inflation was the reason the Anti-inflation Act was enacted. however, he could not accept that inflation was the subject matter of the act, because it also includes powers to enact new taxes or laws to control the money supply.

Parliament, he added, cannot enter provincial jurisdiction unless it clearly signals what it plans to do.

"We are left with a federal statute which in no way refers to a situation of national emergency supported by one province (Ontario) whose support was qualified by the opinion that national emergency is synonymous with national concern."

Sentimental Sinclair?

"That's right folks.

I've never been short of good business reasons for buying Sterling Silver Olympic Coins.

But with the excitement building fast, and with the world on it's way to Canada for the 1976 Olympics, you can't blame a guy for feeling proud or even a bit sentimental.

That's why Series VII coins are so precious. They're real money but they have a value that goes beyond dollars and cents.

They're the last series of Olympic Coins to be minted, and will be the best souvenir you can buy of this great event.

But don't wait around!

With a lot of people feeling the same way as me and with all those visitors coming, these beautiful works of art might not be as easy to buy later on.

So buy them this week before the rush starts."

... Are These Line-Ups A Thing Of Past?

QUEUES such as this from September, 1969, should be eliminated by new systems at UVic, registration officials hope. However, they warn, procrastination could bring a similar situation.

The agonies of long line-ups typical of September registration at the University of Victoria should be largely alleviated this year with pre-registration.

For the first time, the university is undertaking a summertime pre-registration program to save winter-session students at least one of the hassles of getting back to the grind.

Pre-registration is underway now, and continues to Aug. 13.

In the first week only about 100 students a day took advantage of pre-registration, but the number should pick up, says R. A. Shimmin, director of registration services.

Shimmin said he hoped students wouldn't leave pre-registration to the last minute, or the August line-ups could be just as bad as those in September.

Shimmin stressed that it is all to the advantage of the student to pre-register. "There's no benefit as far as the university is concerned," he said.

Pre-registration runs Monday to Friday from 12:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. in Clearihue 207.

Pilot's Clothing Finder Just a Nuisance: RCMP

HOPE (CP) — An RCMP corporal says that a man who last week found some clothing belonging to missing pilot Dave Chapman of Kelowna is just a nuisance.

Cpl. Dan Larratt of Hope, who took part in the original search after Chapman's light plane crashed Nov. 7 in mountain terrain east of here, said Sunday that Chris Turton, 37, of Kelowna, is "no help, he's a hindrance."

"Our opinion of Turton is that he is just a nuisance; that's our opinion," Cpl. Larratt said in a telephone interview. "He's just going out to try and make a name for himself."

Cpl. Larratt would not elaborate but said that Turton's discovery of Chapman's clothing about two miles from the crash site is the first sign of the former chairman of the Kelowna Hospital Board.

The officer said a new search with tracking dogs would likely start this week, and if that fails to locate Chapman, who is believed to have died from exposure after trying to walk out of the bush, a full-scale ground search would be organized.

Turton said Sunday he can't understand the RCMP's animosity.

"They seem to be overreacting," he said in a telephone interview.

Last Wednesday, Turton and his brother Ted resumed a personal search for their friend Chapman, and Friday they discovered four pieces of his clothng on the banks of a creek.

Included were Chapman's torn trousers with his wallet in the back pocket containing his credit cards, pilot's licence and $65 in cash, a nylon sock, a monogrammed handkerchief, and his shirt ripped into three pieces.

Turton said there was no sign of blood on the articles, although they had been under water when the creek was swollen. He said the place where the clothes were found was the "exact location" of an area closely searched by himself and an armed forces team in November.

"We had the area marked (last fall) with surveyor's tape and the tape is still there today," Turton said. "There is no doubt that we searched the area last year."

Chapman is known to have survived the crash of his Mooney 20 aircraft because he left a note in the cockpit saying he was uninjured and would attempt to walk out of the bush to Hope.

Although Chapman was described as an experienced outdoorsman, Cpl. Larratt couldn't explain how part of his cloting was beside a creek.

"He could have been in shock, in an unsettled physical condition from the crash," Cpl. Larratt said. "I also realize that when people find they are lost they panic.

"When they panic they start getting hot and start taking their clothes off. The next thing is we find them frozen to death."

Arid Pastures Raise Spectre of Inflation

Times News Services

Severe drought in Europe and Australia is raising the spectre of new waves of inflation as shortages push food prices higher.

In Europe, the simultaneous expansion of Western economies has already lifted many industrial raw material prices to record levels on London markets.

Tin is booming, copper prices are at their highest level in two years and other metals, including zinc and lead, are doing well.

Now — as a direct result of the drought — grains, oilseeds and sugar are all more expensive, while fruit and vegetables are likely to cost more soon. Last week, Common Market farm commissioner Pierre Lardinois said the drought was at its worst in Belgium, Luxembourg, parts of West Germany and in northwest France.

There were problems in south Germany, east and south Holland and southern England. But crops would be saved if it rained soon, he said.

In France and Belgium, officials are describing the long weeks without rain as catastrophic.

British farmers in the normally lush pasture lands of southern England have dubbed 1976 "the year the grass refused to grow."

Poland and Romania have already used scarce foreign currency to import Western grain and more purchases are believed likely this year.

Hungary and Czechoslovakia have called for major efforts to complete harvest work quickly to avoid losses after a potentially crippling three weeks without rain.

In Australia, farmers are killing thousands of cattle and the wheap crop, Australia's largest export item, is in jeopardy in one of the worst droughts in the country's history.

Little rain has fallen in more than three months in the southern half of Australia. If the drought does not ease in the next few weeks officials say the government may be forced to impose export restrictions again, as it did in 1974.

THOUSANDS CHEER QUEEN AT BOSTON TEA PARTY SITE

★ Elizabeth Greets Loyalists

HALIFAX (CP) — Fresh from a friendly conquest of rebellious colonies lost by her Georgian ancestor 200 years ago, Queen Elizabeth arrives Tuesday morning at this old base of Loyalist operations in the stirring days of the American Revolution.

This will be her ninth visit to Canada and includes visits to Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario. She will open the Olympic Games in Montreal Saturday.

While the warmth of her Maritime reception likely will leave little doubt as to the standing of the monarchy in this part of Canada, no observer concedes this royal tour will not run into some cool republicanism and some opposition in Quebec. One candid official said this tour might be royalty's most testing time for continuing as head of Canada.

In Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, security will be relaxed and allow the Queen some free and easy "walkabouts"—but in Quebec the iron ring of Olympic security will leave little chance for anti-royal demonstrations such as she met in Quebec City in October, 1964.

BOSTON (AP) — The Founding Fathers of the United States would have been surprised but pleased, said the Queen, as she heard the cheers of thousands at the spot where colonists first read a Declaration of Independence from Britain.

They would have liked the idea, she said, "that eventually we came together again as free peoples and friends and defended together the very ideals for which the American Revolution was fought."

Her reception was certainly different from anything King George III would have received when Massachusetts was a rebellious colony.

Spectators lined the route of her motorcade tour, stood on rooftops and looked from windows to catch a glimpse of the only reigning monarch ever to visit this city.

Banners saying "Welcome Liz" were strung from apartment buildings and cyclists pedalled furiously to keep pace with the royal limousine.

The Queen and Prince Philip stood and waved to well-wishers from the balcony of the Old State House, where the Declaration of Independence was read for the first time to the people of Boston.

"We could think of no one person who could do a bicentennial greater honor by their presence than the Queen," said Boston Mayor Kevin White as he welcomed her.

The Queen began her visit in the company of the 200-year-old frigate USS Constitution. Old Ironsides sailed alongside as the royal yacht Britannia glided into Boston Harbor, where rebellious colonists dumped British tea into the water 200 years ago.

The Queen toured the Constitution, and as she left, 16 crew members, resplendent in navy uniforms of 1812, jumped into the lower rigging and gave three cheers.

Then the Queen visited the Old North Church for a morning service.

The church is best known for its lanterns that dispatched Paul Revere on his midnight ride to warn the colonists that British troops were coming.

In this heavily Irish-American city, the only demonstration against the Queen came near City Hall where a group of about 75 protestors carried signs calling for the removal of English influence from Northern Ireland.

Big Boats In Lead

Although the three largest boats in the Victoria-Maui race continued to hold the lead Sunday stronger winds in the rear allowed smaller boats to start closing the gap.

Bill Niemi's 61-foot Joli of Seattle was still leading the pack and reported her position Sunday evening as 1,210 miles from the finish line.

Her sister ship, Jacob Woods' Socery of Seattle had shortened Joli's lead, reducing it from 150 on Friday to 42 miles.

In third place was the prerace favorite, Doug Fryer's 62-foot Ragtime of Seattle, 88 miles behind Joli.

Per Christoffersen's 39-foot Terna III of the West Vancouver Yacht Club was next, 100 miles behind the leader. In fifth spot, 130 miles behind Joli, was John Long's Trumpeter of Jericho from the Royal Vancuver Yacht Club.

Ten miles behind her was Paul McCullough's Race Passage of the Bremerton Yacht Club.

Victoria's only entry, Al Nelson's Lucifer of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, was in seventh spot, 180 miles behind Joli.

The Poor Country Cousin

Alberta Energy Minister Don Getty's statement that Alberta's new $9-per-ton coal royalty may produce windfall profits for B.C. was delivered with the studied indifference of a minister whose government has more than $1 billion tucked away in its Heritage Trust Fund. Getty is probably correct too, in that B.C.'s paltry $1.50-per-ton royalty will attract coal companies like Swiss banks attract deposits.

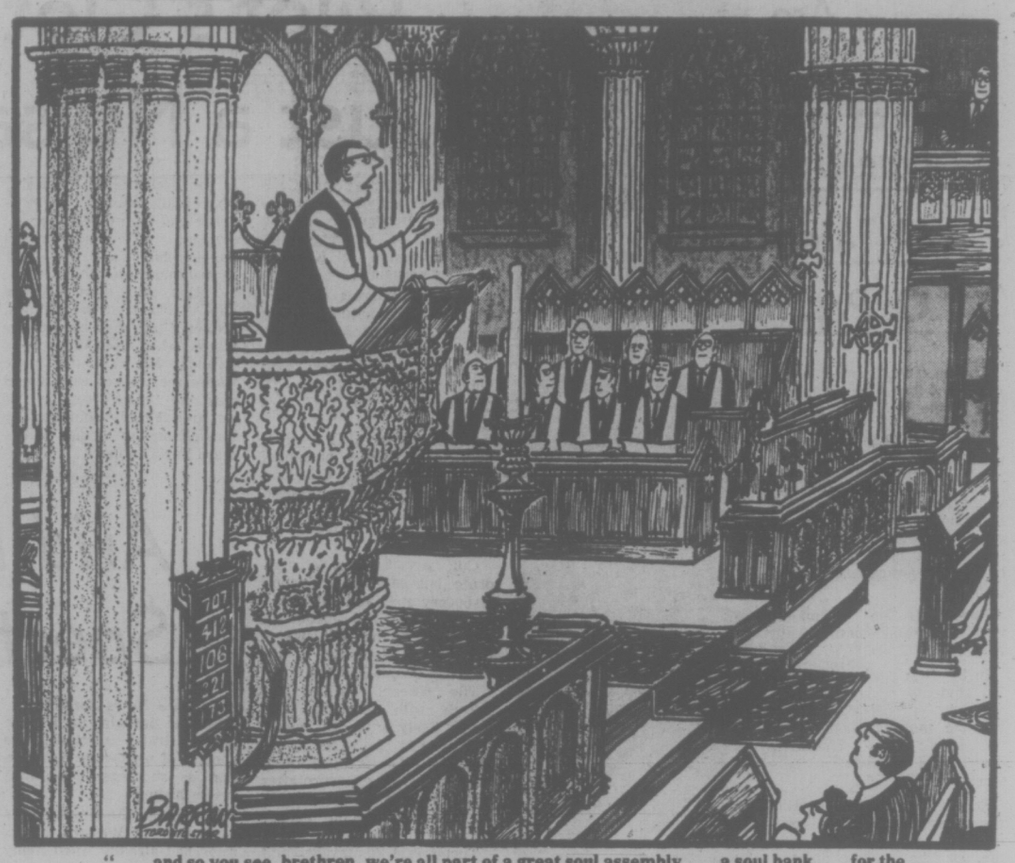
If Alberta had continued its old coal royalty rates it would have taken in $900,000 this year. Now it can expect more than $23 million this year, before the coal mining companies go away in a huff to B.C. Our coal royalties are said to be under review by Mines Minister Tom Waterland. Also, new mineral legislation passed in the recent session very carefully left out any reference to coal. Presumably this means the government is considering a new coal policy, perhaps with increased royalties, but nothing approaching the $9 figure of neighboring Alberta.

During debate on Waterland's estimates NDP Opposition Leader Dave Barrett asked why coal royalties had not risen to $2.50 per ton on May 1, 1976, as called for by NDP policy. Waterland said B.C. has adopted a wait-and-see attitude, promising a new policy in due time. It is also interesting to note that Kaiser Resources Ltd., the province's largest coal company, earned more than $71 million in profits last year.

Yet the debate in the house hints at a fundamental irony between Alberta and B.C. economic policies. Conservative Alberta purchased Pacific Western Airlines, in one fell swoop guaranteeing a healthy secondary aircraft maintenance industry for Edmonton and an administrative centre for Calgary, not to mention a strong northern transportation link for the province in the developing north. Had the NDP in B.C. purchased the airline screams would still be echoing through the corridors of corporate power.

And even the socialist NDP was only going to raise coal royalties by only $1 per ton on May, 1976. Alberta's sliding scale of royalties up to $9 per ton would have been politically unthinkable for the NDP. Such an increase is also philosophically unthinkable for the current government. Had there been some quiet consultation between the two provinces, B.C. might have reaped the same windfall enjoyed by Alberta. The coal companies would have nowhere else to go in western Canada since the best seams runs down a line roughly parallel to the B.C.-Alberta border.

One salient point emerges, though. Pragmatic Alberta ignores the fetters of ideology, brings a thousand-plus jobs to its heartland, establishes a new secondary industry and ensures that the province will receive a fair return from its nonrenewable resources. Meanwhile, shackled to its polarized ideologies, British Columbia yearns for secondary industry and sells its coal off like a poor country cousin. While we squander our energies on right and left the rest of the world passes us by.



"... and so you see, brethren, we're all part of a great soul assembly ... a soul bank ... for the holding and development of our faith ... each of us in his own fashion the entrepreneur of his soul and we must be careful not to mortgage our ..."

Battle of the Buses

The guerilla war continues between B.C. Hydro and the remnants of the transit bureau established by the former provincial government to plan new bus routes and means of moving people around, with the crown corporation apparently uncaring about whether it destroys the good or the bad done by the planners.

First, before the legislature's public accounts committee last month B.C. Hydro's man in charge of transit gave MLAs erroneous information about decisions by the NDP's transit bureau. Assistant general manager Bill Duncan was contradicted by none other than Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis from whose department the transit bureau used to operate.

Curtis said Duncan gave inflated figures on the price of used buses the bureau ordered and misled MLAs on the subject of a German trolley car bought for $150,000 as a transit demonstration project.

Now in a safety report on the buses, Duncan last week painted in blackest shades the record of the previous administration's transit planners. Hydro will never buy another used bus "on a bet," said Duncan. He sensationalized "a near-catastrophe" that was averted in Vancouver recently when a used diesel bus bought from Quebec went through a red light after the brakes failed.

"Miraculously, no one was killed or injured," he said in his report. Miracles be praised, and we're grateful no one was hurt, but we wonder if Duncan's purpose isn't mixing gratitude for divine intervention with a little mau mau job on the whole transit system.

Accidents on public transit should not be underestimated, but what's his design? Last month's little episode of "exaggeration" and this safety report may be innocent coincidence but to some it will look as if he's trying to scare the daylights out of bus riders.

Hydro's distaste for its transit operations — an unprofitable little brother inherited unwillingly when the province nationalized the money-making electricity and gas operations of the B.C. Electric Co. — is well-known. W. A. C. Bennett's government kept trying to push it off onto the reluctant municipal goverments, and Hydro kept improvements and innovations to a minimum.

We hope that Duncan's public statements to date do not presage a demolition job, or even a partial downgrading of the excellent bus system the Socreds inherited. Stop picking nits, Hydro, and make it even better.

RICHARD GWYN

Cold Climate of the Mind

OTTAWA — "The final sentence of your column suggests you find it painful to contemplate the separation of Quebec. Why painful? Assuming separation is in a civilized manner, would we have less freedom, poorer living standards, poorer education of health care? ... Everyone, I believe, will be better off when Quebec is separated. I am willing, though, to be persuaded I am wrong. — K. L. Palmer, Ottawa."

In nearly three years of punditry and of more than 400 columns, no piece of prose of mine has produced a response that even remotely matches the reaction provoked by a recent column which started out with the flat declaration: "Most English-Canadians no longer care whether Quebec separates."

Letters, uncounted and unanswered, are piled up on the desk. About a dozen people called, some by long distance.

My estimate "most" was a guess of course. I was certain only that many English-Canadians felt this way, many more than most politicians and opinion-makers realized, or could bring themselves to realize.

Old-fashioned Bigotry

Public statements (57 out of 122 callers to an Ottawa hot-line show, for instance) and private comments since then make it seem much more probable that English-Canadians, in a proportion not that far short of "most," indeed are indifferent whether Quebec stays or goes. More useful, it's now possible to better understand why so many English-Canadians hold that once heretical opinion.

Plain old-fashioned bigotry is one reason. "Put the Frenchmen in a cattleboat and send them to Borneo so the head-hunters can get them," said one caller.

But bigotry was the exception. The prevailing tone of the letters and calls was of impatience, of frustration, of disappointment that the partnership has somehow failed. One housewife sent her children to French classes, at her own expense, but now concludes: "It just doesn't work."

It's possible to trace back the mood of middle English Canada to three sources.

First, an intense dislike of Prime Minister Trudeau personally, and so, by extension, of his bilingualism policy. "An arrogant elitist," writes a woman from Agincourt, Ont. This populist protest is reinforced by a sense of outrage that Trudeau, despite the will of the people, has abolished capital punishment.

Second, a widespread conviction that endless bickering over bilingualism has pre-empted governments from dealing with the problems that really concern ordinary people — inflation, housing, education, violence, taxes and welfare ripoffs.

Lastly, repressed frustration and bitterness because English-Canadians have for years been made to feel that any criticism of any aspect of bilingualism, or of the conduct of French-Canadian politicians in Ottawa or in Quebec, would brand them as rednecks.

This emotional blackmail, which is what it is, won't work any longer. A great number of English-Canadians are prepared to think the unthinkable, and are prepared also to think it out loud, without embarrassment and without defensiveness.

QUEBEC CITY
... from the St. Lawrence

Only two letters were unsigned.

Palmer's letter is the clearest example I have of the kind of thinking out loud that now needs to be done. His challenges — to prove that separation would leave everyone worse off — deserves to be answered and not by lectures about "two founding races" or about "109 years of partnership."

The conventional defence of the existing union is based upon its economic advantages. This argument, I believe, isn't good enough. In fact, a break-up would save English-Canada some money. Nor would Quebec necessarily be hurt: it would substitute self-responsibility for outside subsidies, and after an initial jolt would be better off for it.

We would suffer a cultural loss of course. Only a small number of English-Canadians, though, benefit from the French culture or vice versa. Even the Canadian Authors' Association, like those of the pilots and air controllers, is about to divide into two language groups.

The real loss would be inside ourselves. We would have rejected our own personality. If Canadians have any claim to international distinction it is because, dull and introverted and all the rest of it, we have as a people a natural gift for tolerance and an acquired skill at compromise.

Our wealth, mostly, is an accident, stumbled upon under a rock or borrowed from the Americans. Tolerance and compromise are our only real achievements. Our immigration laws are far from perfect. They are more liberal than anyone else's. Our sins against our native people have been more often those of omission than of commission. Bilingualism, a good deal of the time, is a pain in the neck; it is also an experiment in linguistic generosity that had no parallel anywhere in the world.

Less Inner Freedom

Separation, whether forced or just allowed to happen out of sheer indifference, would diminish us to a small, one-dimensional people, too timid and too insensitive to allow anyone to be different from ourselves.

To accept, or to compel, a break-up is to legitimize intolerance. If one minority is too much to cope with, then so are all minorities — blacks, immigrants, native peoples. Unable to kick French-Canadians around any longer or, within Quebec, English-Canadians would all kick each other: east versus west; the regions versus what's left of the centre, a fat cat Alberta versus a plumpish Ontario.

Separation would not, as Palmer pointed out, bring us poorer living standards, or education, or health care. It would bring us instead less freedom within ourselves. We wouldn't be Canadians anymore. Just a bunch of people living in a cold climate.

Budgetary Restraint

I am currently a patient at the Victoria General Hospital.

Apparently the sick of Victoria are the next sacrificial lambs to the god of budgetary restraint. While the per diem charge to us has been increased 400 per cent, the quality of the food here has decreased in direct proportion. When I was a patient here 18 months ago, I looked forward to meals as one of the bright spots in my day. Now I forage snacks in the care packages my wife has so lovingly provided for me. Some skip certain meals entirely.

Must helpless patients continue to endure this drop in the minimum standards of care and well-being, or can we trust the government to care for us? — Steve Patton, 301-1445 Fort Street.

Beautiful B.C.

We have recently returned to our home in Surbiton, Surrey, 12 miles outside London, after a most delightful holiday spent in your lovely Victoria and Vancouver with relatives. This was our first visit to your country and without doubt it was indeed the holiday of our lifetime and we would like you to know the impression it has left with us.

We just loved Victoria and having driven up-Island over the Malahat, the forest and Cathedral Grove, Fort Rodd Hill and all that magnificent scenery, never forgetting your beautiful Butchart Gardens, your provincial museum, parliament house and government buildings. Not to be forgotten either are the grand meals we had at the Empress Hotel, Harbor Towers and on the Princess Mary.

We were absolutely amazed at the courtesy and politeness of your shop assistants and the time and trouble taken to serve us. It was indeed a pleasure to shop in Victoria with its spotlessly clean tree-lined roads and avenues and in conclusion we must mention your bus drivers who we are sure are the most genial and helpful one could ever find.

We hated leaving and would love to return.

We spent less time in Vancouver but found that equally beautiful, Stanley Park, Queen Elizabeth Gardens and that breathtaking ride up the Grouse Mountain where we dined in the restaurant. They too were equally courteous. — John and Queenie Pearce, (Two Senior Citizens) Rosedene, 10 Alexandra Drive, Surbiton, Surrey.

Pigeons

I feel the time has come for the decent people of Victoria to complain about the "don't care" attitude of our mayor and city council, regarding the incompetent way in which they are handling reports given to them by concerned citizens.

The report I am referring to, was one sent in by me on behalf of the people of Driftwood Courts on Irma Street, regarding the erection of an unsuitable building to house pigeons. This building is placed behind the homes of the Driftwood Court residents. The building inspector's office was informed that no permit had been given. Nevertheless, a permit was issued without an inspection of the pigeon house.

Now, this creates a precedent, so now I am of the opinion that if this is not rectified, anyone can go ahead and build anything, anywhere, anytime, and defy the city to do anything about it. For if the city inspectors objected to anyone putting up a building, the person could always refer to Irma Street and use this an an argument against the city, and believe me, that person, who ever he may be, would have 30 Driftwood Court residents to help support the argument.

I do hope that through your paper, we can make the people of Victoria realize that unless strict action is taken and taken soon, this city is doomed. For once decay is allowed to set in, it takes no time at all for it to spread all over.—James Alcorn, 203—3160 Irma Street.

Belfast, Northern Ireland — royal intercession asked.

Royal Clemency

It is with interest that I hear that Queen Elizabeth has made a request to the president of Angola for clemency to save the life of one of her subjects, sentenced to death for murder.

Perhaps if the same subject had not originally been trained by Her Majesty's military advisers in brutality, torture and savagery to be used against some other of her subjects in Northern Ireland, while he was a member of Her armed forces, he would not have found himself in his present predicament.

Incidentally, I do not remember Her Majesty's clemency being extended to save the life of an Irish prisoner whom her ministers allowed to die in an English jail because of his protest against savage confinement conditions.

Her Majesty is to be congratulated, if not for her prevention of savagery and murder and least for those who used her name while so engaged.—Kevin Cahill, 809 Lawndale Avenue.

Saving Gas

How utterly ridiculous of Transport Minister Jack Davis to suggest that a 25-mile trip taken by B.C. Ferries instead of by highway saves a car driver $4 worth of gas. Why even the Cadillacs and Lincolns driven by cabinet ministers must get much better mileage than that!

A more accurate statement by Mr. Davis would have been, since this profit-motivated government has not yet had time to install parking meters on B.C. Ferries the two-hour trip saves drivers 80 cents in parking fees. — C. Blair, 939 Reeve Place.

Taiwan Athletes

With regard to the affair of the Taiwan athletes, I should like to draw attention to two facts, seemingly never given publicity in North America:

1. The International Olympic Committee seems to be "tut-tutting" at what is called "bringing politics into the Olympic Games." But the IOC itself, at least until 1968 and possibly later, refused to allow North Korean athletes to compete in the games, whereas it did allow the South Koreans to do so. If ever there was a political decision, that was one.

2. As regards individual countries bringing politics into athletics: the Japanese refused to allow any North Korean athletes into their country to take part in international competitions, like, for instance, football. Also, when three South Korean athletes defected during the Olympic Games in Tokyo, the Japanese sent them back to certain punishment in South Korea, instead of sending them to North Korea, where they wanted to go.

I don't remember any of these holier-than-thou, "non-political" human rightists and athletes making any outcry in the Korean-Japanese affairs, as they are doing now. The question is simply being used as one more stick to beat the Trudeau government with. — Mrs. Waveney Burchill, 3-216 Douglas Street.

Idealistic Crusaders

The recent two-installment piece in the Times about Technocracy reiterates that organization's claim to be in favor of a money-less society of abundance for all. Desire and reality can be disparate things and this certainly applies to Technocracy.

Like so many idealistic crusaders, the Technocrats see only the surface manifestations of "mysterious, magical" money, in isolation from the historical-economic phenomena it is part of. They desire to attack money as the cause of scarcity for the many.

As the kitten did not give birth to the cat, neither did money give birth to capitalism. Instead, capitalism gave rise to goods and services in the form of commodities for sale-profit. Taking this fact of life a step further, it is the exchange nature of commodities that called into existence a specialized commodity to effect exchange, to standardize price and to measure value — gold (or money).

To complete this microcosmic description, commodity production is an inseparable part of minority ownership of the means of life.

Technocracy's ignorance of these facts of social existence is the barrier to the attainment of its goal. The Socialist Party of Canada's knowledge of these causative factors on the other hand, is the reason why its program is the solution for the poverty and unhappiness of the majority.

Technocracy ignores the current class division entirely — the minority ownership of the means of life. In harmony with this, it supports most of the ideology and institutions of capitalism — government, nationalism-patriotism, minority social control, armed forces, religion, etc.

Its energy certificate would merely be another name for the dollar bill. To briefly illustrate Technocracy's unawareness here, its spokesman in the Times article said that overseas travellers from the American Technate would be able to exchange their "non-money" energy certificates for the money of foreign countries.

This is not the stuff that basic social change is made of. — J. G. Jenkins, 959 Darwin Avenue.

The Issue Isn't Safety

By LISA HOBBS
The Sun

Last week's stinging comment by Communications Minister Jeanne Sauve that the federal government knelt down to "a bunch of fanatics" when it signed an agreement with pilots to end a nine-day air traffic tie-up will likely be chalked down by many as a fine example of francophone spleen.

That's a pity. The evidence indicates that Madame Sauve's opinion contains a large element of truth.

By now, the whole divisive air controllers row looks like a complicted interwoven mess of technology and nationalism. But looked at individually, — and stripped of the mystique and fear of flying that have invested any statement made by the air pilot's association with a touch of omniscience—they are not so complicated as to be beyond public understanding or legislative control. Nor are they separated from broader socio-economic changes that are affecting the aviation and avionics industries throughout the world, although no one so far has said a world about this.

The key fact, and the first point, is a simple one. Five airport control towers in Quebec are already bilingual and their controllers want to extend this to all Quebec airports, including Montreal.

Point two. The air-controllers in Quebec are not attempting to impose French on anybody: they simply wish to be bilingual as are other world airports, and as they are entitled to be as Canadian citizens.

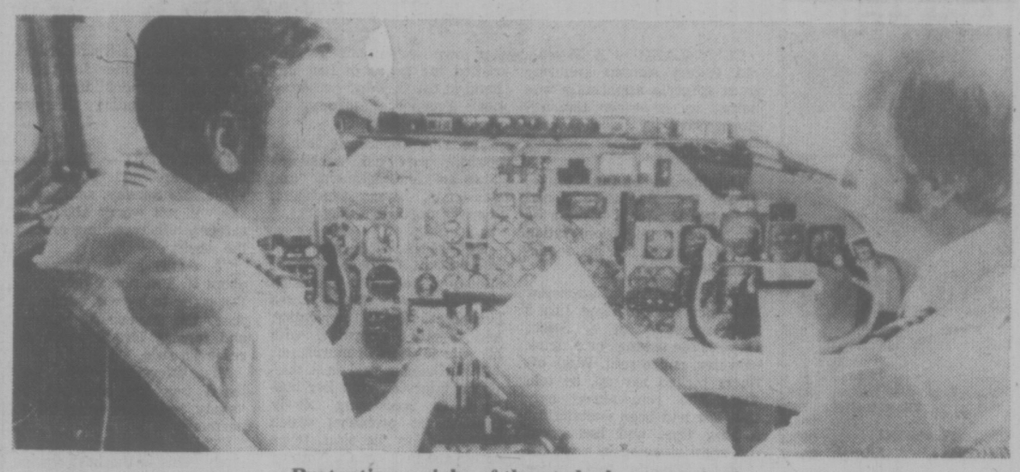
Point three. Large commercial aircraft always fly IFR (instrument flight reference) and always use English, which is always available as a first or second language at international airports throughout the world.

Point four. All aircraft flying above a certain altitude (which varies at different Canadian airports) are under air traffic control at all times and always speak English no matter where in Canada.

Point five. This is best illustrated by an example. A plane is flying to Toronto from Prague. At Moncton the air traffic controller passes the plane on across Quebec giving instructions to Montreal in English. The air traffic control officer in Moncton does not have to be bilingual if he is an anglophone but the traffic controller in Montreal does if he is a francophone. He must pass the plane onto Toronto in English. The same situation applies if the plane is flying east.

Point six. The francophone air traffic controller in Montreal is not asking to use French nor is he demanding that the pilots speak it as he sends the plane from east to west. He is merely asking that, if requested by the pilot, he be allowed to speak French.

Point seven. When the same plane left Prague, or arrives in that city, it will be under a trilingual air traffic control system of Czech, English and Russian.



Protecting a niche of the anglophone empire?

It is reasonable to ask then what on earth the airline pilots' association is talking about when it says the main issue is one of safety. It obviously isn't and it's just as obvious that raising this issue is a ploy to turn the sweaty-palmed flying public against the air controllers. Day and night this highly-glamorized group of pilots — try to think of one occupation more glamorized by Hollywood — jet around the globe without the slightest bit of difficulty — apart from the occasional hangover — under a variety of bi-, tri- or quadra-lingual controls.

Why does such a system threaten to turn Canadian airports into scenes reminiscent of the Battle for Britain when it is introduced into one's own homeland? Could it possibly be that the whole question has provided a perfect vehicle for the fullsome expression of the deeply-entrenched anti-francophone attitudes of the English-Canadian middle-class? The facts indicate it not only could be: it is.

In addition, now that the combined brains of the air pilots' association are going full throttle, it is probaby acutely aware that, if French grows in general usage in general aviation (as opposed to commercial aviation) in Canada, there might be a preference both for bilingual pilots and air controllers. And the Canadian experience is that it is the Quebecers who learn English with some ease, rarely the English to master French. Hence a desire to protect a surviving niche of anglophone empire.

There is another aspect to this silly business which seems to have slipped everyone's attention, and that is this mess does not by any means spring solely from our own internecine fighting, although it might have been precipitated by it, but reflects broadly changing patterns in aviation and avionics all over the world.

It has been said ad nauseum in the past few weeks that English is the international language of aviation, as if this were some final, irrefutable argument against change. On the contrary, this is a mere accident of history that is fast fading in practice and importance. Its use, in fact, is nothing more than a by-product of the nearly total domination by the Americans of the aircraft and avionic industries since the Second World War. In the area of general aviation — that is, private pleasure planes and corporation business planes — it has been only the English-speaking people of North America who have had the affluence to keep pace with commercial aviation.

General aviation — as distinct from commercial — is now expanding enormously. For the first time individuals and corporations are flying fleets of sophisticated, fast, high-altitude planes, flying in fact at the same high altitudes and speeds as commercial craft. For the first time, schedule airliners and private planes are competing for the same air space. As a result, there is no way that one language—English—can continue to be the sole language of general aviation throughout the world. It will be, and is being, paired with the language of the people on the ground.

To expect all French-Canadian air traffic controllers dealing with aircraft capable of IFR operations to be bilingual, while at the same time not allowing them to use the language of the people on the ground, not only imposes on them a qualification not demanded of anglophones, but is a practice increasingly at odds with modern avionic standards.

The point is that the days of English language domination of the air, both here and everywhere else, are past. And if we've learned nothing else so far, we should have learned that racism comes in all disguises and the flying teamsters of the pilots' association have just treated Canada to one very fine, if devious, example.

Don't Be Cowed By the Mandarins

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — Time and again I meet this tendency for Canadians to be over-respectful towards our institutions and those who head them.

It seems that it is presumptuous conduct to mock the mandarins, brahmins or pharisees of our bureaucracies.

A Montrealer, one H. Myerson, has protested in the Monteral Gazette over a column of mine regarding the case before the Supreme Court of Canada on the validity of the AIB arrangement.

Myerson is outraged — "shock and consternation" — at the column which was titled (in the Gazette) "Logically, court should reject AIB constitutionality." The Gazette he believes should apologize to its readers for publishing Fisher's article.

Why? Because any Canadian with "even a smattering of intelligence is fully aware of the fact that we possess a judicial system which hears and decides issues which are brought before it. And when such issues are brought before the court, no one, but no one has the right to publish his opinion about the issue until the judgment is rendered. The whole matter is 'sub-justice'."

This argument is poppycock. It's almost tragic that so many Canadians believe it. So-called "sub-judice" in Canada applies in criminal cases. Why? There is the presumption that the accused is innocent until he has been judged in court.

Matters relating to the constitution are wide-open, 24 hours a day, every day of the year, for the expression of opinions by any Canadian.

To paraphrase two well-known expressions: The constitution is too important to be left to lawyers and judges and law is not some brooding omnipresence in the sky.

Entirely aside from a body of cases, running back to the early 1870s, we have a plethora of arguments and views on our constitution seen as almost holy as the BNA Act or even more grandly in the context of all that "unwritten constitution" stuff the British revel in.

What do all these opinions tell us — from the most recent expletives of a trade union leader in Thompson, Manitoba, cursing the AIB to the constitutional essays of Pierre Trudeau to French-Canadian favorites on the constitution expressed so trenchantly in the Tremblay report (late 1950s)?

They tell us that the constitutional arrangements of Canada have been a debatable, wavering, shifting thing—defying the intentions of the fathers, frustrating Ottawa in favor of the provinces, then swinging back to the centres then over to the Ottawa side.

And throughout the years the "feds" and the provinces would occasionally get together on a deal (as they did with AIB stuff) and run around the constitution.

Once in a while on such deals somebody out "there", that is outside government, challenges the validity of what the governments do in the courts. Myerson describes me as "an arrogant columnist" who is poisoning the air. If it is arrogance I can't apologize for it. Within a few days of the announcement of the AIB, I was advising my contacts among Ontario secondary school teachers and in several of the trade unions to take this program to the courts over its validity. How, I asked them, could a federally-created agency decide the emoluments of teachers within provincial school systems?

It simply didn't square with the constitution as I read it or had heard it interpreted or had taught it in school.

The nine judges sitting on the case have taken themselves more time. Good. Whatever they decide will cause some uproar. They are not geniuses, we can bet. They have had the devil's own time, squaring case law and statute law with power and national feeling.

This case has everything and has been decided by the majority out of nine. Not only must they decide "yeah" or "nay", they must also give reasons. I imagine that's what they've been hung up on. A majority will want to go with "the feds" but how in the heck can they dress that case up in respectable arguments?

Canada Ignores its Own Precedent on Taiwan

By MARJORIE NICHOLS

OTTAWA — The modern Olympic Games, which were established in 1896, have survived wars, plagues and several re-draftings of the world's territorial maps, not to mention Hitler and several generations of Canadian diplomats. Or let us put it another way. If the organizers of the Olympics had over the years allowed their policies to be dictated by the transitory domestic politics of host nations there would be no Olympic Games. This "private organization," as it was so disdainfully referred to recently by an external affairs official, would have gone the way of the sand-filled high jump pit.

It would, of course, be extraordinarily naive to suppose that international politics play no part in international sport. The IOC itself is politically responsive because it is an internationally- representative body operated according to democratic procedure. Representatives from Rhodesia have, for example, been barred from participation in the last two Olympiads.

But the point — and the only relevant point here — is that it was the IOC itself that decided the issue, not the host government.

The Taiwan issue is not really as complicated as it may seem. The IOC had decided that the Taiwanese should be entitled to compete at Montreal as the representatives of "The Republic of China."

Canada finds this offensive, because it would seem to conflict with Canada's official China policy. And so external affairs has threatened to bar the Taiwanese athletes at the border, unless they are willing to swear that they represent Taiwan and not a place called The Republic of China.

Silly? Petty? You'd better believe it.

The fact is that the Canadian department of external affairs is so entangled in its own conflicting policies that it has become a national embarrassment. This spring when Canada played host to the United Nations Conference on Human Settlements in Vancouver, it was decided to allow entry to representatives of the Palestine Liberation Organization, even though they are classified as an outlawed organization under Canadian law. Canada argued at the time that it was obligated as a host to accept the guest list drafted by the UN, which had voted to seat the PLO as observers. The best way to promote peace and understanding among the brotherhood of man, it was argued, is to sit down and talk to all the brothers and sisters.

Fine. The difficulty is that external no longer accepts its own precedent. The IOC as the host is not being awarded the right to choose the guest for the Olympics because, well, we don't like it. External affairs, the great rationalizers, now try to cleverly argue that there is a difference between a "private" international organization and a "governmental" international organization.

To attempt to convey official Canadian policy at any given moment is an exercise in danger. But, roughly, this is the way it apparently is: If an international organization populated by bureaucrats paid out of the public purse wants to come to Canada for a conference, then domistic politics must be set aside.

If, however, an international organization populated by persons who do not receive government salaries wants to come to Canada for a conference, then domestic politics must take precedence. It is what is called drafting policies off the seat of one's trousers.

One other thing: Citizens of Taiwan, bearing passports marked "Republic of China" are now permitted free access to Canada, to travel, to sightsee, to do business, etc. It is only for the duration of the Olympic Games that external affairs wants to bar these persons entry.

When Lord Killanin, president of the IOC, speaks of the Canadian position on Taiwan as a potentially dangerous precedent he is indulging in understatement. The next summer games are to be held in Russia. Now, where will righteous little Canada stand, should the U.S.S.R. try to bar athletes from, say, Israel? The suggestion is not far-fetched. Russia does not recognize Israel. Canada does not recognize the Republic of China. What's the difference?

As for External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen's argument that all Canada is asking the IOC is for the application of the "Italian precedent," all that can be said is: hogwash. For the 1960 Olympic Games Taiwan did indeed agree to be referred to as "Taiwan." But there is a large difference. It was the IOC that decided this policy. The government of Italy did not interfere. Domestic politics were not a consideration.

Just for fun, someone ought to ask Jesse Owens about this. Had Hitler had his domestic political way on this matter of Olympic guest lists, Mr. Owens might have gone on to fame, as say, the fastest red cap on the Northern Pacific.

The Pot Penalty

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

When it comes to the legal status of marijuana in Canada, we hardly know whether to yawn, foam at the mouth or head for the hills. If ever there was a case of obsolete legislation, then the laws governing the possession of marijuana surely qualify. Year after year, they remain — glaring from the pages of the Criminal Code at the three million Canadians who, at last count, had dared to smoke pot.

That, alone, is aggravating. But there is more. Back in 1972, then Justice Minister Otto Lang with a princely gesture directed Canada's Crown Attorneys to seek conditional or absolute discharges, unless there was an exceptional reason for not for doing so, for all first offenders charged with possession of marijuana. The logic there was a bit fuzzy: why have a law on the books if you don't intend to enforce it? But, no matter; the Crown Attorneys have managed to find their "exceptional reasons" and the ranks of the criminally recorded possessors of marijuana — those who transform a joint or two into a lifetime handicap — have soared.

The number of Canadians convicted of cannabis offences rose from 11,713 in 1973 to 29,064 in 1974. According to figures provided by the Toronto regional office of the Department of Justice (covering an area which includes Metro Toronto, Oakville, Brampton, Mississauga, Newmarket, Oshawa, Whitby and Ajax), the number of arrests for simple possession of cannabis has increased from 1,254 in the first four months of 1975 to 1,496 in the same period this year. Convictions were up from 1,014 to 1,197. Sentences of jail terms more than doubled from 12 to 26; the number of fines rose from 280 to 320. Conditional discharges rose as well (460 to 568), but absolute discharges remained unchanged (203 both years).

So much for leniency.

Ottawa has steadfastly refused to be swayed by even the most persuasive expressions of public sentiment. The LeDain Commission on the Non-medical Use of Drugs spent four years and millions of dollars exploring the use of marijuana in Canada. It recommended that the possession of marijuana be transferred from the Narcotic Control Act to the Food and Drug Act, with more lenient treatment for offenders and an end to their being branded with criminal records. The result, if you can call it that, was a brief flurry to talk and then a long silence. In fact, the penalties for possession of marijuana have become more, not less, severe. And that's odd in a country whose government has had legislative proposals to relax its cannabis laws sitting around in one form or another for at least four years. Odd, in a country where the casual use of marijuana is becoming socially, if not legally, acceptable. Odd, in a country that purports to be governed by the will of its people.

The Missing Republican

russell baker

I got to the office at noon, downed a slug of bourbon, gave my secretary a kiss and a sock in the jaw and said, "All right, sweetheart, who's the Republican waiting to see me?"

"How did you know she was a Republican?" she asked.

"I could smell the money on her breath," I said.

"Please help her, Sam."

I went to the keyhole and glommed her. She was wearing spats and a diamond solitaire as big as a politician's heart the day before elections. I wanted to sock her right on the jaw.

"I know you hate me," she said.

"Why should I hate you?" I said. "I work for a lousy 25 bucks a day and expenses, never lay a hand on the really sexy dames and take those awful beatings from the hoods to keep my integrity, and you Republicans reward me by cutting off my food stamps. Of course I don't hate you."

"You have a right to hurt me like that with your cruel and subtle sarcasm," she wept, "but if you find my son I'll help you get back in the food stamp program."

"Not good enough," I said. "I want the big payoff for this one."

She blanched like a peeled chestnut in boiling water.

"You mean . . . ?" "That's right, sister. I want your spats."

She made a mental note to blackmail me at the Welfare Department and shook hands on it. Two hours later I tooled up to the White House in my heap, got out and bumped my head on the gate. "Welcome back, Mr. President," the guard said.

Inside I talked to a geezer with a finger caught in his ear. He said he had been using it to dial the telephone and lost his place.

I told him I'd help get it out if he came clean about the missing Republican son. "What's his name?" he asked.

"I'll ask the questions," I said. "He's got a mother that wears diamonds and spats."

He gasped. "They've got Bartholomew Buckwallow!"

The zap came from the rear. I went out like a liberal Democrat in a Texas election.

Three days later I came to in Los Angeles. You could tell it was Los Angeles. Everybody was wearing orange hair and $5,000 dental caps, and when I started to walk two cops picked me up and booked me on charges of committing pedestrianism in a public place.

When the judge heard I was looking for Bartholomew Buckwallow, he slammed me back in the cooler and an hour later I was seated on the right side of a room on the right side of a mansion on the right side of Los Angeles talking to an old codger in a young sports jacket.

"Listen, Gipper," I said, "there's a mother back east crying her heart out because her little boy doesn't come home after school any more to watch Sesame Street."

The whole right side of the Gipper chuckled like a politician with six new judgeships to pass out. "Little Bartholomew," he said, "is 39 years old and paying alimony to three wives."

You could have knocked me over with a Gallup Poll showing Jimmy Carter ahead by 22 points, and somebody did. As I sank into a red pool of oblivion like a New York mayor at the controller's office, the Gipper was saying, "If we don't have him, and the man who gets his finger caught in his ear doesn't have him, Buckwallow is still at large."

It was eight days later when I came to in my office. After a slug of bourbon, I gave my secretary a kiss and a punch in the solar plexus. She said it was great to have me conscious again, and I told her to get Mrs. Buckwallow over here right away and bring me the newspapers.

Two hours later she was there, reeking of tax loopholes and cursing welfare bums. "Come across with my spats," I said.

"You've found my boy?"

"It was easy once I knew he was 39 years old and that both Ford and Reagan wanted to snatch him. I checked the papers today and discovered they're practically tied for the nomination. One uncommitted delegate could swing the whole thing."

She started to blanch. "Don't do your peeled-chestnut number again, Bartholomew Buckwallow," I said.

"How did you guess?"

"Easy, Buckwallow. You're an uncommitted delegate and you knew both mobs were desperate to snatch you. To save yourself, you went into drag, posed as your own mother and used me to get the word to the mobs that you had vanished. One little slip gave you away."

"What was it?"

"Your spats. Even among Republicans, women hardly ever wear spats."

Buckwallow blubbered in terror and begged me not to betray him, but I had that old score of the food stamps to settle. First I dialled the White House, then Los Angeles. Buckwallow was fleeing in the street when I finished, but I could already hear the hounds baying.

He didn't leave the spats, as promised. He was a politician, all right.

KITAKYUSHU, Japan (AP) — Twenty explosions at two-minute intervals rocked suburban Kokura Saturday. Terrified residents ran into the streets and police dispatched a riot squad to investigate possible terrorist bombings.

Instead, they found about 45 men setting off giant firecrackers in front of Kokura prison as a welcome for Tadamasa Goto, 33, who was released after serving 10 months for extortion, violence and causing bodily harm. Police said the men are gangsters and Goto is their leader. Police rounded them up, made body checks and arrested six for illegal possession of dangerous weapons.

Storm Jolts Woman's Memory Back

CLEVELAND — A 36-year-old Boston woman suffering from amnesia apparently was helped by a severe thunderstorm Saturday. Police said the storm jolted her memory back.

The identity of the woman, Jessie Donadio, already had been learned from a reporter for a Boston television station who recognized her in a televised interview.

Mrs. Donadio disappeared from her Boston home July 2 and appeared at a Solon, Ohio, home asking for a drink of water, police said. When officers picked her up, he told them she remembeed only that she had been walking for a long time and had spent the night sleeping in a woods.

Mrs. Donadio told police she now recalls all recent events except for a 48-hour period last weekend.

FREEPORT, Ill. — Helen Ohlendorf, 77, was killed by her own automobile as she visited the grave of her husband at the Oakland cemetery near Freeport Saturday, according to authorities.

The car, apparently left in neutral, rolled backward down an embankment and struck Mrs. Ohlendorf, sheriff's deputies said.

KELOWNA — Former premier W. A. C. Bennett spent Sunday watching a television show about the United States Democratic Party convention and quietly celebrating with his wife 49 years of marriage.

Mrs. Bennett said in a telephone interview that her husband is recovering slowly from heart problems which sent him to hospital twice within the last month. Nothing special was arranged for the anniversary celebration.

"It's very slow," she said. "He's doing as well as can be expected."

She said his activities include reading, sitting outside, going for car rides and meeting his grandchildren and children, including Premier Bill Bennett.

HONG KONG — Rina Messinger, crowned Miss Universe 1976 Sunday, said today she will not worry about her safety while travelling around the world.

"I don't have to worry about it, I'm not a politician, I'm going to have a wonderful year, the 20-year-old student and former Israeli air force reservist said.

Miss Messinger who had listed her life ambition as "study," said her reign fits in perfectly.

"There are many ways to study. This is the best chance to learn about people in different countries," she said.

Arthur C. Cummings, a former editor of the Ottawa Citizen and one-time chief of the Southam Bureau in London, has died here at the age of 90.

Cummings enjoyed a worldwide and varied career. After immigrating to Canada from Ireland in 1909, he worked in Vancouver for the Province and the now defunct News-Advertiser and World.

He travelled later to Fiji, New Zealand, Australia, India, Ceylon and French Somaliland. Working his way to London, he joined Southam in 1929.

During the Second World War, he wrote hundreds of dispatches for The Province on the London bombings. With the end of the war, he came to Canada and joined the Ottawa Citizen in 1945 as editor.

Services were held Sunday.

SINGER Cher Allman gave birth to a healthy seven-pound, six-ounce boy Saturday, officials at Cedars-Sinai Hospital reported. Blond-haired and blue-eyed Elijah Blue Allman arrived about five hours after Cher entered the hospital, a spokesman for the entertainer said. Her husband, singer Greg Allman, was with her during labor and delivery.

$5,000 Demanded For Body

WASHINGTON (AP) — Daniel Gearhart signed up to fight as a mercenary in Africa because his family was deeply in debt. Now, says his wife, the Angolan government that executed him wants her to pay $5,000 to get his body back.

Angry and close to tears Sunday, Sheila Gearhart said her husband died on their 11th wedding anniversary.

The 34-year-old Vietnam veteran was executed Saturday by an Angolan firing squad, although he said he never had a chance to fight in the African country before his capture by Cuban troops. He had advertised his services as a mercenary in Soldier of Fortune magazine.

Mrs. Gearhart said her husband fought for pay because of $30,000 in debts plaguing the family. Now, facing life as a widow on welfare with four children, she said the Angolan government has told her it will cost her $5,000 to get her husband's body back.

Beauty Resigns

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — Sharon Lambert, who as Miss Washington was to represent the state in the Miss America pageant, has resigned her title for "personal reasons."

Miss Lambert, 21, a student at Pacific Lutheran University who is facing a shoplifting charge, will be succeeded by 19-year-old Theresa Adams, first runnerup in the Miss Washington contest.

"She has resigned for personal reasons and we have accepted her resignation with a lot of regrets," pageant production director Jack Francis said in a statement Sunday.

STAMPEDE POPULAR

CALGARY (CP) — More than 92,000 persons poured through the gates at Stampede Park Sunday, an attendance figure 24,000 higher than for the same day last year at the Stampede.

The highest attendance record for a Sunday was set in 1973 when 93,745 visited the Stampede grounds.

So far, an exhibition official said, more than 325,000 have come to the Stampede, compared with last year's third-day cumulative total of some 264,000.

Cary Grant: 72, But He's Still a Star Among Stars

By TOM SHALES
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Cary Grant at 72 walked into the American Film Institute and spotted a photograph of Cary Grant at 42. The grey-haired man in trifocal lenses pointed at the black-haired smoothie in the bow tie and gasped, "Good God!" But the old Cary Grant had nothing to fear from the young; with minutes he had singlehandedly charmed the dickens out of everybody in the place.

Not all the visiting royalty in Washington last week was of the crown-sporting sport. Grant, here for Wednesday night's state dinner in honor of Queen Elizabeth, is an American monarch, the quintessential Hollywood star. He may not be Dorian Gray — he's just plain grey — but he remains an ideal to men and a dreamboat to women.

"Where will the Cary Grant press conferences be held?" a woman on the AFI staff was asked. "On my lap," she replied, smiling. The hastily convened session was called when Grant agreed to help the AFI Theatre kick off its 36-film Grant retrospective. It began Wednesday night with Bringing Up Baby, one of his innumerable comedy classics, at about the same hour Grant was hobnobbing with fellow superstars at the White House.

Grant looks very well, very happy, and very rich. He appears to have led the life we would all wish for him. "What goes on in your soul?" one reporter asked him. "I start by breathing in and out," said Grant. "And rather happily, too."

He seems a strange combination of vulnerable vanity, honest modesty and, for someone with a romantic image, an incongruously keen business sense. He's always been a good wheeler-dealer; when he made The Bishop's Wife in 1947 for a salary of $400,000, it was the highest ever paid an actor at tha time. When dovorced from his fourth wife, Dyan Cannon, in 1968, his worth was estimated at $10 million and his annual income $300,000.

Grant hasn't made a move in 10 years and says he no longer bothers reading scripts sent to him. All rumors of impending comebacks were poo-poo'd, "I haven't even been to a movie in ages," he said. "I'll be truthful with you, I find life much more interesting than the movies. I don't read novels, either. It suits me at my age.

"I'm a pretty ancient fellow, after all. If I were to make a movie, the audience would spend the first 20 minutes saying to themselves, 'My God, doesn't he look awful?' "

Now a globehopping executive for Faberge and a board member at MGM, among other business interests, Grant said that, thank goodness, he rarely sits behind a desk in an office. "I can do it all at home and stay in my pajamas."

If that sounds like an easy life, Cary Grant deserves it. "I'm too busy living my memoirs to write them," he said, and when a reporter began, "I hate to ask this question," Grant interrupted him to philosophize, "Don't ever do anything you hate."

Cyprus Fund Drive a Swindle?

VANCOUVER (CP) — A spokesman for the Cyprus Liberation Movement said today that Greek businesses in the city are being taken for hundreds of dollars by two men claiming to be raising funds for Cypress refugees.

"We are asking owners of Greek businesses not to give any money until we have had a chance to check the credentials of these two men," the spokesman said.

So far, he said, efforts to check credentials have proven fruitless since the two fund-raisers never tell anyone where they are staying and ask for cash only.

The spokesman, who did not wish to be identified because "we don't know how extensive this organization is," said the two men arrived here about two days ago from California.

"The businessmen are told they are collecting money for Cyprus refugees and displaced children, but they take only cash, no cheques," he said.

"In addition, they have made no contact with officials in the Greek community.

"We know that some businesses have given as much as $200."

The spokesman said at least 50 Greek-owned businesses in the Vancouver are have been visited.

"They came across the U.S. and came up here from California. Now we understand they'll go to Toronto, Montreal and on to Europe."

He said the two are travelling by car, and are expected to visit small towns across Canada on their way East.

He said members of the Cyprus Liberation Moviement have checked sources in Athens, New York and Ottawa in an attempt to determine whether there is a campaign going on to raise funds for Cyprus refugees.

"So far nobody knows anything about it," he said.

"Certainly if there were an official drive going on we would be the first to know."

Skeena Steelhead Fall Blamed on Gillnetters

SMITHERS (CP) — Commercial salmon fishermen on the tributaries of the Skeena River are the inadvertent cause of a "frightening decline in steelhead stock," says Mike Whatley, fishery biologist for the provincial fish and wildlife branch.

Whatley says "steelhead is a game fish — it is not a commercial fish."

Half of the steelhead trout harvested in the Skeena River system are caught commercially in gillnets set for sockeye and pink salmon.

Although it is impossible to tell what percentage of the total stock has been harvested, he said, commercial fishery figures indicate an 84-per-cent decline since the early 1950's in steelhead caught at the mouth of the Skeena.

Whatley said in an interview that "if it keeps going that way, we won't have any fish."

Fishermen do not want to catch the trout, but salmon and the summer run of steelhead enter the estuary at almost the same time— from mid-July to mid-August.

He said: "A gillnet is a passive fisherman. You can't put up some sort of sign saying steelhead, get away."

Whatley said the fish and wildlife branch must document its case to demonstrate to the federal government the extent of the damage done to the steelhead stock by commercial fishing.

The branch has instituted a tagging program to this end, but the results of the program will not be konwn for at least three years and Whatley said "we can't wait."

A study has also been undertaken to determine the patterns of the commercial fishing industry.

Whatley said he is hoping research will show a difference in migration patterns and timing between the salmon and steelhead.

If there is a difference, steelhead stocks could be preserved by closing part of the Skeena system to commercial fishing or by closing the entire system for two to three days during the fishing season.

Indian Toll Gate Protests Fishing In Mercury River

WHITE DOG, Ont. (CP) — Chief Isaac Mandamin says a toll gate will be erected Tuesday morning on the road leading to the White Dog Indian reserve.

He said the toll gate will charge $10 a car with one exception — cars belonging to the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources will be charged $25.

Chief Mandamin said in an interview Sunday the toll gate will remain up until the English-Wabigoon River system is closed to all fishing.

The system was closed to commercial fishing in 1970 but the Indians, who get a living by working as guides for tourists, continue to eat the fish.

High levels of mercury have been found in the fish. The federal government has asked Ontario to ban sport fishing in the system, but Ontario has refused.

The Indians have been blockading the only road to the northwestern Ontario reserve, but took down the blockade Thursday as a gesture of good faith.

The blockade was removed while talks were held in Ottawa Friday between Indian leaders from the area and Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan.

Chief Mandamin said the proposal to create a new national park around the English-Wabgoon River system, announced Friday, is based on a November, 1975 plan.

He said he found the plan in the office of a prominent Liberal MP Friday afternoon in Ottawa. He declined to name the MP and said he could not get copies of the plan.

He said he did not know why the plan, which was marked confidential, was not given to him and five other Indian representatives who were in Ottawa for talks Friday.

He said he found the plan less than two hours after the parks concept was first proposed to him by Buchanan and Donald Irvine, Ontario Resources development secretary.

Ruth Improves Javelin Record

EAST BERLIN (Reuter) — East German Ruth Fuchs bettered her own women's world record javelin throw Saturday at a national track and field meet with a throw of 69.12 metres (226 feet, nine inches). Her old mark was 67.22 metres (220-6½) set last year.

BEER GIVES MOUNTIE A SORE HEAD

BURNABY (CP) — An RCMP officer was taken to hospital with a head injury after a house party got out of hand here Saturday night.

The officer was treated for head wounds suffered when struck with a beer bottle.

He was released Sunday. Several other police officers suffered minor cuts and bruises.

Police were called to the party after complaints from local residents. After police issued a warning, about half of the crowd of about 200 dispersed.

But the other half started throwing rocks and beer bottles at nearly 30 police officers.

Police arrested 22 persons.

Tourists Love Helmcken House ... But Where Are Victorians?

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Folks from other parts of Canada and visitors from the United States seem to know more about Helmcken House and its history and contents than Victorians.

At least the curator of the provincial historic house believes so—and she has figures to prove it.

Of an estimated 22,000 people who visited the house tucked away on Elliott Street and abutting Thunderbird Park in 1975, not more than 2,000 were from Victoria, Marjorie Pettigrew observed.

"It's not that residents don't appreciate this museum," she said. "It's because, I'm sure, most people don't know where it is, and don't even know it exists."

She blamed the lack of directional signs to the house for this.

"Even the directional sign which people saw if they came out of the exit door of the museum, has been taken down," she said. "One visitor told me he first thought the house was a private club."

She said many visitors have told her they heard of Helmcken House through friends who had visited the home.

"It is certainly not advertising that brings them here by the thousands," she said. "There isn't any."

Mrs. Pettigrew is anxious for more Victorians to visit the house because, she says, "it has an important story to tell — it is a monument to man who played an important part in the history of the city and the province."

Built in 1852, the house hasn't changed much since the days when the pioneer doctor and a member of the first legislative assembly on Vancouver Island entertained friends to discuss the future of the then crown colony of Vancouver Island.

It was probably here that he made his decision to support the entry of British Columbia into confederation and wrote most of the terms of the union.

The rooms and their contents tell much about the man, and his wife, Cecilia, oldest daughter of Governor James Douglas.

There's his bed, in which he died in 1921 at the age of 96, and his sea chest — a reminder that Helmcken came to Victoria from London via the Horn.

In another room there is his medical chest, plus his surgical instruments.

At one time, more of Helmcken's belongings, as well as those of his wife, were on display in the house, but a theft in 1970 resulted in the removal of some of the more valuable items.

Mrs. Pettigrew recalled that one of the stolen items was the doctor's pipe rack with an attractive hand-carved wooden chain attached.

"We now have to tie things down or put them under glass," she said.

She said the more a person lingers about the house and examines the memorabilia, the more Helmcken's portrait comes into focus.

There is certainly nothing grandiose or pretentious about the house or its Victoria furnishings.

It reflects a man who did not seek power or fame, but worked for the well-being of the people.

But outside the house is a badly worded government plaque to commemorate the historic house.

It states that John Helmcken was "a spokesman for those who thought Canada was too distant to make a union practical" and goes on to suggest that a trip across the U.S. showed him that union was possible.

Some visitors have interpreted this to mean that Helmcken was pro-American and pro-union with the United States. He was the very opposite.

And there is another mistake. The plaque states he was born in 1825 when it was actually 1824.

Victoria Housing Starts Up 100%

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Housing starts in the Greater Victoria area were up more than 100 per cent during the first six months of this year and applications continue to come in during July despite the construction labor dispute.

There were 2,470 housing starts from Dec. 31 to June 30 this year, up from 1,146 in the corresponding 1975 period.

Most of the increase was in apartment units. While single family home starts increased to 660 from 400, apartment construction soared and 1,572 units were started in 1976, compared with only 716 in the same six months last year.

In addition, 142 row units were started this year, up from 65, and 96 duplex units were started, up from 12.

For each month in 1976 the starts were higher than in the corresponding month a year ago. The June total was 301, up 50 per cent from 203.

The construction lockout might delay the start of some large apartment projects but smaller buildings and all single family homes are expected to proceed.

Smaller construction companies tend to be non-union.

Municipal building inspectors report applications for building permits are coming in at normal volumes so far in July.

One result of Victoria's building boom is a surplus of condominium units across the urban area.

At the beginning of July there were 144 unsold new condominiums on the market.

Of this total, 107 were in Victoria City, 19 in Saanich, 12 in Esquimalt and six in Oak Bay.

By contrast only 26 new rental apartment units were available at the beginning of July. There were 15 available in Victoria City and 11 in Esquim alt.

Construction of condominiums outnumbered rental units by a wide margin. While work was proceeding on 70 rental units in 1976, there were 443 condominium units being constructed.

The market was quite tight for single family homes. There were only 69 unsold new homes on July 1, down from 74 at the same time last year.

Of the 69 houses on the market, 68 were listed at $60,000 or more. The exception was a house in Central Saanich at $58,900.

One year ago, five new houses were on the market under $50,000 and another 35 were in the range of $50,000 to $60,000.

Almost all the single family homes are in Saanich. There were 59 in that municipality, seven unsold new houses in Central Saanich, two in Esquimalt and one in Oak Bay.

By contrast less than half the available single family homes were in Saanich one year ago.

At July 1, 1975, there were 34 of 74 single family homes available in Saanich, 16 in Central Saanich, six in Victoria City, four in Sidney and the remaining 14 were in other parts of the district.

ENGINEER QUITS

Deputy city engineer Dave Campbell doesn't like to be second man on the totem pole.

And for that reason he is giving up his $32,000 a year job with the city and entering into business of his own. He leaves Sept. 10.

Campbell, in an interview today, said he has already formed his business — Campbell Engineering Inc., incorporated April 13. He hopes to be involved in consultant work helping small municipalities or the provincial government with traffic problems.

For the first while he will be working out of his home, he said. His wife Irene has quit her job as a registered nurse to become his secretary and bookkeeper.

Now 42, Campbell came to Victoria 10 years ago to head the city's traffic department. A graduate of Yale University with a masters degree in engineering, he had been traffic engineer 4½ years in Calgary before arriving here.

Two years ago when the traffic section was amalgamated with the engineering department, John Sansom was appointed head. Campbell said he still feels bitter he wasn't chosen, adding, "I don't like to be second in command of anything."

He said there were no personality problems between his and Sansom but considered his deputy's job as a position without future or chance of promotion.

"When I was in charge of traffic there was always hope I'd make it as city engineer ... but now there isn't."

Besides, he said, the deputy's job was "too much paper work, and I'm not a paper pusher."

He noted that as deputy he set up works programs and supervised the activities of the engineering staff which numbers close to 300.

"Now," he added dryly, "I'll only have to supervise one person ... my wife."

Old Sigurdson Would Have Approved It

WE WERE POKING AROUND in the new forest northwest of Campbell River when we came on traces of an old logging works. Forty years of weather had reduced steel to rust and logs to grey shells through which the foot sank into reddish duff. But one massive timber bedded in waist-high brush had fared better against the assault of time.

It was part of a sled on which a donkey engine had been skidded from one setting to another. Although rot had eaten into its bulk, its top remained intact. That surface was almost as smooth as if it had been worked over by some giant plane.

Win took a picture of the relic that had survived from an earlier logging era. Later, we showed the print to a district old-timer.

He studied the picture closely. Then he cracked a slow grin.

"That'd be up where a creek come out of a lake," he said. "There was a bridge. Not a trestle, just three-four logs laid across. Sure ... I broad-axed that sled runner myself!"

I knew he had been a mighty man in the woods. But until he dropped his remark, I hadn't been aware that swinging a tool designed for heroes was among his skills. It was an accomplishment that demanded respect.

In the years before the chain saw arrived spitting and snarling on the coast logging claims, no camp lacked experts with axe and crosscut. With routine efficiency, the fallers would drop the tall green precisely where they intended it to land, and consider themselves shamed if they broke a tree. Their axes, formidable instruments with 48-inch handles and narrow bits honed to a shaving edge, were not tools for a tyro.

But the broad-axe was something else again, and a good broad-axe man was hard to find.

He was the master of a highly-specialized trade — a woodcarver who shaped logs with hair-splitting precision to meet all needs. His ponderous axe with its offset handle and extravagantly wide bit was so heavy that only a strong man could swing it, let alone guide it true to the mark. It looked uncommonly like the weapon with which executioners of old severed necks in the shadow of the Bloody Tower.

A broad-axe man knew his worth. He was an artist and a person of importance. I learned that as a water-boy to the gods on a highball show where the second-growth now hides the stumps.

Sigurdson, the camp broad-axe man, permitted me the honor of turning a grindstone for him under his finicky direction.

It was a warm evening. I sweated to keep the grindstone spinning just so while Sigurdson touched up his pet. I sluiced water from a cookhouse lard bucket on the stone at command ... "Easy, kid, you want to ruin the temper?" ... until the maestro was finally satisfied with his cutting edge.

Next day on scraps of stolen time, I watched him justify his reputation.

He was shaping a donkey sled, and to the casual eye, he appeared to be making a lazyman's job of it. His pace was unhurried. He swung so easily that his broad-axe appeared to fall of its own accord.

But the chips it threw were the size of dinner plates, and each stroke landed with machine-like precision in the track of the one before it.

The runner that emerged from the log curved smoothly upward at either end to a flat top that would have stood the test of a straight-edge. It was a triumph of eye and hand, duplicated countless times over in woods where the axe was king.

I'm tempted to claim that the broad-axe man is an extinct species. This isn't necessarily so, however. Just last week at Campbell River's annual Salmon Festival, I happened upon convincing proof.

In one of the craft booths that had mushroomed overnight, a bearded young man offered hand-forged tools for sale. There were froes for cedar shake splitting, and scribers to be used in log cabin construction, and along with these, a broad-axe helved and edged to perfection.

Sigurdson would have approved it.

200 Years Ago Cook Sailed

From Poverty to Heroism

Two hundred years ago tonight at 8 Capt. James Cook sailed HMS Resolution out of the British naval port of Plymouth.

Crammed aboard the unimpressive ex-collier were 112 men, committed to close quarters for the lengthy voyage in which Cook would discover the Hawaiian Islands, the Pacific Northwest and become the first European to set foot in Nootka Sound.

With a beam of 36 feet and 5½-feet decks, the former coal-hauler was 109½-feet over-all.

Fittingly, today Premier Bill Bennett was to unveil a statue of Cook on the Inner Causeway, the only replica of the one that stands at Whitby, Cook's home town, in Yorkshire.

Among those to attend the ceremony was Robert Crawford, executive director of the Captain Cook Foundation in Altadena, Calif.

Born a Scot, Crawford says Cook exemplifies the heroes today's younger generation is seeking.

"He was an explorer and never fired a shot in war. He was not born with a silver spoon in his mouth. He was born in an earthen floor cabin, the son of a day laborer," Crawford said. "He taught himself navigation before he volunteered for the navy and was taken on as an able seaman."

One of Crawford's most precious belongings is a copy of the secret orders given to Cook by the Lords of the Admiralty before his departure. Secrecy was adviseable because of Britain's wars with France and Spain.

"The night before he (Cook) left he saw 60 three-decker ships leaving for the war with the colonies (later to become the United States) with Hessian mercenaries, horses and supplies aboard," Crawford said.

Making the voyage of exploration with Resolution was another ex-collier, HMS Discovery.

She met up with Resolution at the Cape of Good Hope. Her sailing had been delayed because her master, Capt. Clerke, was serving 30 days in a debtor's prison in London on behalf of his brother.

A former U.S. air force officer, Crawford said Cook is his idol because of his ability as a navigator, scientist and explorer ... but mostly because of his skill as a leader of men.

Copies of documents obtained by Cook's foundation show that even when the United States was struggling to gain her independence from Britain, Benjamin Franklin had intervened on Cook's behalf.

"Benjamin Franklin wrote to the French government when he was an ambassador in 1779 and the French had the English Channel blockaded. He asked them to let these two old battered ships through because they had been on a scientific mission for the good of all mankind," Crawford reported.

On the 200th anniversary of Cook's setting to sea, Crawford recalled that it would be 586 days before Cook would step ashore at Nootka Sound.

On his way, one of the last places Cook had named before reaching the sound was Cape Flattery, at the mouth of the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

Crawford said that now that Victoria has set a precedent and installed a replica of the Whitby stature plans are being considered to have a similar one made for Hawaii.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you tell me the birthdate of the famous Hawaiian singer Don Ho. S.H.

A. Ho was born in Hawaii on Aug. 13, 1930.

Q. Has Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova of the Unitarian Service Committee ever been singularly honored by the Canadian government? For example is she on any honors list? Is she a Canadian citizen? And how long as she been involved with U.S.C.? G.P.

A. Dr. Hitschmanova founded U.S.C. in 1945 and has been the major figure in the movement ever since. Our records fail to show that she has ever been honored by the Canadian government nor whether or not she is a Canadian citizen. If you wish to pursue the matter you could write to her at the U.S.C. headquarters at 56 Sparks Street in Ottawa.

Little Change At Toronto

The Toronto stock market was fractionally lower in light mid-afternoon trading Monday.

Volume of trading by 2 p.m. totalled 1.05 million shares compared with 1.62 million at the same time Friday.

Declines outnumbered advances 150 to 134 with 218 issues unchanged.

Horrie and Pitfield Foods Ltd. was up 40 cents to $4.25 after trading resumed at the opening following news that M. Loeb Ltd. was offering $5 a shae for the firm's remaining stock.

Loeb, which holds 86.5 per cent of Horne and Pitfield, slipped five cents to $2.90.

Among other industrials, Canadian Hydrocarbons fell ⅝ to $9¼, Canadian Tire A ½ to $45½, Petrofina ⅜ to $18⅛, Inco A ⅛ to $34¼ and Algoma Steel ⅛ to $25.

Revelstoke Co. rose ⅝ to $7⅛, Fatconbridge Nickel ½ to $41½, Pacific Pete ½ to $29¾, Seagram Co. ½ to $25 and Alcan ¼ to $26⅛.

In the mines, Roman Corp. was down ⅝ to $20½, Giant Yellowknife ¼ to $51 and Brunswick Mining ¼ to $5⅞. Placer Development edged up ⅝ to 24½ and United Siscoe ⅛ to $8⅜.

Siebens Oil dropped ¼ to $15. Pan Canadian Pete ¼ to $24⅜ and Skye Resources 20 cents to $3.15. Quasar Petroleum was up 65 cents to $5½ and Noth Canadian Oils ¼ to $8⅜.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced moderately Monday, geting continued support from optimism over the outlook for interest rates.

Gainers outnumbered losers by close to a 2-to-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was fairly active, with 14.63 million shares changing hands on the NYSE by midafternoon.

Brokers said the market was still responding to last week's moves by the Federal Reserve to relax its credit policy a little.

And there was some speculation Monday that the Fed might ease up even further before long.

Another plus cited by brokers was the smaller-than-expected rise in the June wholesale price index, as reported by the U.S. government on Friday.

National Semiconductors, one of the day's most active issues, dropped 1½ to $46⅝ after a 1⅝ point loss Friday, when the company reported only a slight quarterly earnings gain.

Alyeska Welds Checked

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — President Ford's special pipeline troubleshooter has arrived here to investigate evidence "leading to faulty welds" on the $7.7-billion Alaska pipeline.

Deputy Transportation Secretary John Barnum brought 11 specialists from his department and one from the Federal Energy Administration on Sunday to help review alleged mistakes made during two years of pipeline construction. Barnum plans to leave Alaska Wednesday.

The team will meet with state officials, Alaska-based federal pipeline inspectors, labor union leaders and representatives of Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., the firm which is building the pipeline for eight major oil companies.

Ford dispatched Barnum last week after a federal review of Alyeska's own weld x-ray audit indicated radiographic records were confused and incomplete. Alyeska made the audit because it discovered missing and falsified records for some of the 31,000 welds made last year.

Carter's Bandwagon Speeds Into the Final Stretch

By PAUL WHITELAW

NEW YORK — Jimmy Carter has turned the gaudy Americana Hotel into the 7th Avenue White House.

It's the temporary, chaotic command post of the smiling southerner who will come a step closer to his dream of becoming president of the United States at the Democratic National Convention here this week.

Carter's selection as the Democrat's presidential nominee on the first convention ballot Wednesday night is virtually guaranteed. His bandwagon rolled over all the party's other presidential aspirants in the primary elections.

But despite the lack of suspense, there's no shortage of crowds, confusion, hoopla and hijinks at the Americana — even at the best of times one of the most gaudy and raucous convention hotels north of Miami Beach or east of Vegas.

Carter — who could handily whip the Republicans in the November election, according to current polls — has set up a convention headquarters of presidential dimensions.

More than 600 aides — ranging from top-level policy advisers to teenaged guides for political VIPs — are on hand to make sure Carter's march to victory at the convention goes as smoothly as his primary campaign.

The hotel is ringed by police barricades to control the crowd of supporters and curious New Yorkers who gather outside whenever his motorcade arrives or leaves.

Hundreds of police and Secret Service agents have set up the type of elaborate security web that wouldn't otherwise be provided unless one of the occupants of the Americana's 1,850 rooms was named Gerald R. Ford.

The press room at the Carter headquarters is several times bigger than the one at the White House. It has to be — with 10,000 writers, editors, television cameramen and technicians, messengers and clerks accredited to cover the convention.

If money talks, New York is certainly a place where people listen.

Police say a small army of prostitutes has come to town to reinforce the local girls during the convention, but the recent Congressional sex scandals in Washington may have put a damper on business.

Undaunted, nonetheless, the proprietor of one local topless massage parlor had two girls on a street corner passing out handbills promoting his establishment. He evidently believes it was worth the investment to buy the girls patriotic red, white and blue hot pants-and-halter outfits.

Mars Landing Ground Much Like the Moon

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Scientists seeking a safe landing site for Viking are encouraged by photographs suggesting that part of the surface of Mars is something like the moon.

Jim Martin, project manager for the life-seeking mission, said Sunday new photographs of a potential landing spot west of previous sites showed many of the same characteristics as the moon—including craters, stream beds and ridges caused by volcanic activity.

Martin said Viking is equipped to land on a moon-like surface and probably will settle down on the western edge of the northwest territory if more photographs received today confirm the present data.

A decision whether to land at the site will be made Wednesday, he said, if the so-called western front is chosen the landing, originally planned as part of the nation's fourth of July celebration, could be set for the predawn hours of July 20.

If the western site is considered too hazardous, Martin said, the landing probably would be rescheduled for the previous first alternative site.

Both sites are part of the Chryse Basin, a section of Mars that is more rugged than project officials desired but offers more geological potential than scientists expected.

"Somebody has switched planets on me," Martin joked as he studied pictures from Viking assembled by jet propulsion laboratory technicians over the weekend.

The photographic mosaic shows a pattern of river channels flowing out of a canyon and winding around mesas and buttes. The pictures showed the effects of massive water activity in the past.

Dr. Harold Masursky, a U.S. geological survey scientist, said the waters that once ran over the area were wide and shallow, much like the floods that follow desert rains.

RENTAL CAR FIRMS WON'T FIX PRICES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The three largest passenger-car rental companies in the United States have signed consent orders prohibiting them from trying to squeeze out competitors and fix prices among themselves, the Federal Trade Commission says.

The FTC said today that Hertz Corp., Avis Rent-A-Car System Inc. and National Car Rental System Inc. have agreed to the consent orders.

The FTC has unanimously accepted the agreements signed by the rental firms, but could withdraw its approval later.

The consent order is the result of an FTC complaint filed more than a year ago, alleging that Hertz, Avis and National had conspired since at least 1968 to monopolize airport car rentals, forcing customers to pay inflated rates.

Officials noted the consent order does not signify admission by the companies to any of the allegations.

N-Waste Answer Doesn't Exist?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Knowledge of how to handle atomic wastes is so sketchy there is room to doubt they can be disposed of safely, according to a Congressional report.

The house government operations committee on the weekend released the findings based on hearings and an investigation by the subcommittee headed by Rep. Leo Ryan (Dem.—Calif.).

"We may have to face the realization, even after determined and conscientious effort, that it just may not be possible to guarantee the containment of radioactive wastes over the ages until they are harmless to mankind and the environment," Ryan said. "If this is the case, the implications of such a realization must then be considered in all their gravity."

The committee report urged federal agencies to tighten controls over handling low-level radioactive wastes, some of them in commercial disposal sites. At least two of the sites have "leaked" radioactivity they were supposed to contain, the report said.

So-called low-level wastes are the leftovers of such things as nuclear power plants. The wastes once were dumped at sea and buried on land. But the sea disposal was ended in the 1960s because of possible dangers.

The six commercial burial sites are in New York, South Carolina, Illinois, Kentucky, Nevada and Washington State.

"Some of these sites are rapidly approaching saturation," the report said. "Some of these sites are now releasing radioactivity to the environment, in some instances only 10 years following their selection as facilities designed for the containment of radioactivity for hundreds of years."

Federal officials estimate the volume of waste built up by the year 2000 to be equivalent to paving a four-lane highway, one foot deep, coast to coast.

Despite the enormity of the problem and the shortage of definite knowledge on techniques, the responsibility for the wastes is dispersed among several entities, the report said.

The committee recommended agencies set out their duties in the matter and coordinate for the "safest possible containment systems."

Edwards Sharp for Ticats

HAMILTON (CP) — Veteran Chuck Ealey came off the bench Saturday night to generate two fourth quarter touchdowns by running-back Jimmy de Ratt as Toronto Argonauts defeated Hamilton Tiger-Cats 25-10 in Eastern Football Conference exhibition action.

The win evened Toronto's pre-season mark at a win, loss and tie while the Ticats suffered their third successive setback under new coach George Dickson.

Kicker Zenon Andrusyshyn added another 11 Argonaut points on three field goals covering 37, 33 and 15 yards and two converts. The two Toronto points came in the first quarter when Ticats centre Henry Waszczukthrew the ball over Ken Clark's head and the Hamilton punter was forced to concede the points in the end zone.

Jimmy Edwards, playing his first game in a Hamilton uniform since he was acquired in a trade from Montreal Alouettes last week, scored the Ticats' first touchdown in pre-season games in the second quarter that salvaged an 8-8 tie at halftime.

Hamilton place-kicker Joe Perri converted Edwards' major and kicked two singles on wide field goal attempts. Clarke's 61-yard single in the third quarter accounted for the other Hamilton point.

Dickson, in the midst of a rebuilding job, had to be pleased with what he saw of Edwards and quarterback Jimmy Jones, who came here together in the six-for-one trade that sent running back Andy Hopkins to Montreal.

Edwards ran nine times for 54 yards, caught three passes for 21 yards, and impressed with his ability to find open field running back kicks.

Jones, who went all the way in his first start, connected on 14 of 21 passes for 149 yards.

But it was Ealey, the incumbent Argo quarterback who came on in relief of rookie Brian Dowling to open the second half, who turned the game around, particularly in the fourth quarter.

Mixing his plays about and using assorted receivers, the former Ticat moved the Argos into scoring position twice before de Ratt went over on short-yardage runs.

game in the late stages and Argonauts announced Sunday that running back Anthony Davis would be lost to the club for about three weeks.

Examined in hospital after being hit in the back by a helmet during Saturday's game, Davis was suffering from three cracked transverse processes of the spine.

The injury means that Davis will probably miss Toronto's first two games of the regular season.

OUTSIDERS CAPTURES RICH TROT

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Equileo of France charged down the middle of the stretch Saturday night to win the $200,000 International Trot, symbolic of the world trotting championship, as a 19-to-1 outsider at Roosevelt Raceway.

The six-year-old stallion, who had been chasing his French counterpart, Bellino II, came three wide at the head ofthe stretch and at the end overhauled him for the first time this year. He scored by half a length over the 3-to-5 favorite before a crowd of 35,000 and paid $40.60, $7.40 and $4.

'Thumb' Takes Third in Row

VANCOUVER (CP) — Blue Thumb won his third consecutive stakes victory Saturday at Exhibition Park, coming from off the pace for a neck victory in the $12,500-added Johnny Longden "6000."

The six-year-old California-bred horse has dominated the handicap division this season. He has been beaten only once in five starts and in that he finished third.

Blue Thumb carried high weight of 126 pounds for the 1¼ mile Longden, giving away five pounds to Pampas Host who was next in the weights.

Blue Thumb, ridden as usual by Garth Carter, had to survive a claim of foul before his win was made official.

Sam Krasner, the rider aboard second finisher Trustwood, alleged interference by the winner midway through the stretch turn but the claim was dismissed by the stewards.

Blue Thumb covered the 1¼ miles in 1:51 flat over a fast track. The time was unexceptional.

The $8,767 collected by Blue Thumb brought the season earnings of the horse to $37,127.

B.C. Drubs Ontario

WINNIPEG — Two University of Victoria players and a former Royal Roads cadet helped provide the big punch that carried British Columbia to victory in the Canadian Rugny Union's under-19 championship tournament.

Atoning for its only defeat in the five-province, round-robin, the B.C. squad humbled Ontario 26-6 in Sunday's final.

Previously-unbeaten Ontario defeated B.C. 9-3 Saturday as the teams finished 1-2 in the round-robin preliminary play.

It was a different story Sunday.

Jeff Young, the former Royal Roads captain who now plays for Vancouver Kats, sparked B.C. with three tries and two converts. UVic's Reg Moore added a pair of tries while Gary Grant, also of UVic, scored one try.

Ian Busfield added a try to B.C.'s total and Ron Whyte kicked two converts.

B.C. led 16-0 at the hald.

In Sunday's consolation final, Alberta defeated Manitoba 12-3.

B.C. ran its preliminary record to 3-0 early Saturday by defeating Manitoba 6-3 with Young scoring two penalty goals. Young also accounted for the B.C. points with another penalty goal against Ontario later in the day.

Two Wins for Alexander; Invitation for Brentwood

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. — Saturday turned out to be a good day for Vancouver Island rowers.

Two Victoria scullers scored victories on the final day of the two-day Canadian Closed championship regatta and two Brentwood College crews were steered in the direction of the world youth championships to be held in Austria next month.

John Alexander of Victoria Rowing Club shared two triumphs Saturday. He won the 145-pound singles and then teamed with clubmate Steve Sidebotham to claim the 145-pound pairs event.

Their successes marked the first national championships for the Victoria City Club.

Sidebotham took the silver medal in the singles while Patrick Walter of Brentwood finished third.

Brentwood's youth eights and coxed four both were officially invited to represent Canada in the world youth meet.

The eights qualified with a time of four minutes, 24 seconds — about 10 seconds better than the qualifying standard — in winning their specialty Friday.

The coxed four also was 10 seconds better than the qualifying requirement with their 4:56 time in Friday's victory.

Coach Tony Carr's eight-oared squad consists of Brad Pettinger, Dale Bannerman, Jamie McAllister, Marius Felix, John Yerxa, Alan Wood, Tom Pankratz, Martin Lacey and Gordon Langer.

In other events Saturday, St. Catharines Rowing Club won the lightweight eight, youth four and 145-pound eight while clubmate Brian Thorne took the lightweight singles.

The lightweight eight and Thorne also are being considered by the Canadian Rowing Association's technical committee for the world youth championships.

Brock University won the women's pair while Hugh Huber of Ridley College took the open singles.

Alexander and Ken McRae placed second in the elite heavy doubles while University of Victoria's crew finished second in the women's coxed fours.

Sid Keeps Throwing

Sid Krumpe's hurting, but it's not enough to keep him off the mound.

The Port Angeles pitcher has been bothered by a leg injury but started three weekend games for his Stuffy McGinnis Major Men's Softball League team. He won two and lost one to boost his season's won-lost record to 10-7 and move Telecable into a third-place tie with Ingraham Hotel.

A split with Port Angeles was enough to move Seaboard Construction into first place. Port Angeles won the opener 5-3 but Seaboard took the second 3-0 behind Barry Wilkin's four-hit performance.

Saturday, Port Angeles defeated Sooke Merchants 5-2.

In Sunday's only game played at Central Park, Mark Perkins hit a bases-empty homer and Wally Popoff connected for a single and two doubles to spark Victoria Molsons to a 9-1 victory over the junior Matthews Heating squad.

A scheduled Sidney Men's League game was postponed while the Senior Women's League was idle.

However, two women's teams managed to win three out of four games during exhibition action in Vancouver.

MacDonalds Furniture Seniors dropped Diamondettes 11-5 and bounced Vancouver Firefighters 13-3 while McDonalds Furniture Juniors defeated Diamondettes 2-1 but absorbed a 3-2 defeat at the hands of Firefighters.

The busiest park was Heywood Avenue.

Castle Properties and Capital Builders came up with a split while Hygrade Radio managed a victory in the day's action.

Castle struck for four runs in an extra inning to defeat Builders 5-1 after Capital tripped Remco Office Supply 5-3. Hygrade then nipped Castle 1-0 behind Bob Fetterley's two-hit pitching.

John Coccioloni got both hits off Fetterly.

Winning pitcher Ross Johnson highlighted Castle's victory over Capitals by figuring in three double plays — two of them unassisted.

Burnside Trio Captures Title

Burnside's entry of Jessie Kinneard, Flora Martin and Marty Atkinson defeated Lake Hill's Hazel Hall, Mae Cumming and Estelle Crite 23-9 to capture the Vancouver Island Lawn Bowling Association's Ann Webster Trophy for ladies triples.

Emily Clegg, Ollie Reid and Ivy McLeod of Burnside finished third in the competition held at the Lake Hill Club.

Lawn Bowlers Meet

Vancouver Island's newest lawn bowling club will become an official organization Tuesday.

The club, to operate out of Lambrick Park, will elect an executive at a general meeting Tuesday at the Lambrick Barn. The club also is expected to be baptized with a name at that time.

The club already has more than 45 members. Formed last autumn, it has been guided by a caretaker executive headed by Tom McKeachie of the Victoria club and Hugh Harding of Lake Hill.

Club greens have been in operation for some time while a new clubhouse is nearing completion.

Tuesday's meeting starts at 7:30 p.m.

COWBOYS SIGN GOALIE

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Cowboys of the World Hockey Association have signed goalie Gary Bromley, who formerly played with Buffalo Sabres in the National Hockey League.

They're Chasing Ivan

OLYMPIA, Wash. — Drivers from five western states and Canada head for Victoria's Western Speedway with a single purpose in mind:

Catch Ivan Baldwin.

The Modesto, Calif., racecar driver is the only one with an opposing view and he's threatening to make a shambles out of the 1976 International Drivers' Challenge for super stocks.

After three races in the eight-race series, Baldwin has compiled a healthy lead with two main-event victories and one-third-place finish.

Baldwin and his Chevy Nova have been a hot combination. The Californian has set records on all three tracks visited — at Spanaway Speedway in Tacoma on Friday; at Skagit Speedway in Mt. Vernon on Saturday, and again Sunday at Olympia-Tenino Speedway.

Baldwin was clocked in 16.82 seconds Saturday at Mt. Vernon and had a 15.63 time for his third successive record Sunday.

The IDC series continues with two races at Western Speedway — Tuesday and Thursday — before moving to Yakima Saturday and the windup next Sunday in Portland.

In addition to his record, Baldwin also won the "A" dash and 75-lap main event Saturday. Randy Cheadle of Bellingham was second in both the dash and main event while veteran Herschel McGiff of Bridal Veil, Ore., was third in the main.

Victoria's Roy Haslam managed a pair of seconds. He chased Louis York of Tacoma across the finish line in the "B" dash and also was second to Chuck Becker of San Bernadino, Calif., in the "B" main.

At Olympia, Haslam beat Baldwin in the "A" trophy dash but ran into problems in the main event. Haslam spun out on the eighth lap, tried to recover but had to withdraw later in the race.

Baldwin, Ron Eaton of Tacoma and Barry Powers of Regina finished 1-2-3 in the main event.

Louie Mattioda of Tacoma won the "B" trophy race while Al Mullett of Bellingham and Becker finished 1-2 in the 50-lap "B" main.

Don Dowdy of Yakima won the "A" main event in Friday's series opener at Tacoma.

Super-Stock Lead Padded by Price

Bill Price drove his 1964 Chevelle to a second straight victory before 1,900 spectators Saturday night at Western Speedway to extend his points lead over runner-up Bob Collins in the super-stock driver standings.

Price grabbed the lead on the sixth lap and held off strong challenges by both Collins and Al Wade to win the 35-lap main event.

Collins held the points lead until last Monday.

Wade, who turned the fastest lap in time trials at 19.98 seconds, finished second and Collins placed third in a tight finish.

The only mishap occurred in the first lap when Al Johnson spun out and caused a minor pileup that sent Jim Caudwell, who was running third in the points race prior to Saturday, into the pits for the remainder of the night.

Firefighters Split Series

PORT ANGELES — Robb Stenseth's two-hit pitching helped Victoria Firefighters to come up with a split in a senior Babe Ruth baseball exhibition series with Port Angeles All-Stars here Sunday.

Firefighters won the opener 11-1 but lost the second game 8-2.

Glen Smith, Ron Arcuri and Mark Lawless each banged out two hits to back Stenseth's effort in the opener.

HOME-PLATE TAG by pitcher Ian Lang of Gordon Head Cosmopolitans is watched closely by umpire Chuck Blaikie during Sunday's game against Esquimalt-Victoria in Babe Ruth district baseball playoffs for 13-year-olds at Lambrick Park. Twenty-six Esquimalt runners crossed home plate in game, 15 of them during wild first inning in which there were 13 runs before anybody was retired. Tournament continues tonight at 6:15 when Esquimalt meets Layritz with winner advancing to Tuesday's final.

Olympic Pool Springs A Leak—In the Roof

Times News Service

MONTREAL — The roof of the Olympic swimming hall — part of facilities at the main Olympic park designed by French architect Roger Taillibert — leaks in the rain.

Workmen have filled cracks round the acrylic skylight and a spokesman said Sunday he hopes the leaks have been stopped.

"We will not know, of course, until we get some more heavy rain," he said.

During a torrential downpour last Tuesday, water was streaming through the roof on to one section of public seats near the diving pool. At least 10 rows of seats were affected and some water also was dripping into the diving pool.

Two weeks ago it was discovered that the roof of the Olympic Velodrome leaked. The leaks there have been plugged.

A spokesman said Saturday the trouble with the roof of the pool last week was "ten times less than we were having a few months ago."

The cracks are caused by the different rates of expansion between the concrete roof and the acrylic skylight, he said.

The absence of world 1500-meter record holder Filbert Bayi from recent international track meetings could be one of the reasons Tanzania pulled out of the Olympics, suggested Lance Cross, the New Zealand member of the International Olympic Committee.

Cross said, "Bayi could have lost form. I have not heard of him competing in big international meetings for the past two months." Cross asked, "Where would Tanzania be without Bayi? Who else have they got?"

Deploring the absence of Bayi, who could have competed with New Zealand's world mile record holder John Walker, Cross said, "this is a great blow to one of the top races of the Olympic athletic program. It could have been a great race. Everyone was waiting for this clash."

Walker finished second, three-tenths of a second behind Bayi, when the Tanzanian air force technician broke the world 1500-meter record of 3:32.2 at the 1974 Commonwealth Games in Christchurch, New Zealand. Cross said that even if Walker won the Olympic 1500 meters here, it would be a "hollow victory without Bayi."

TORONTO — International competitors, preparing for the Olympics, turned in brilliant performances Saturday night at the third annual Etobicoke Guardian invitational track and field meet.

Athletes from Jamaica and Antigua highlighted the meet.

Jamaica set a Canadian open record in winning the womens 800-metre relay with a time of one minute, 36.4 seconds. The Jamaican team, which included Olympians Ruth Simpson and Helen Blake, bettered the previous open standard of 1:39.6 set by the Detroit Motor City Track Club.

A team from Toronto Scarborough placed second in 1:38.4, setting a Canadian native record.

In the invitational women's 400-metre event, Miss Simpson finished first in 53.7 followed by Judy Canty of Australia, 53.9, and Miss Blake, 53.9.

Joan Wenzel, on the Canadian Olympic team, dropped out in the invitational 400 race while running second and with 50 yards remaining because of what seemed to be a pulled hamstring muscle. Later, however, she appeared okay.

Debbie Mitchell of Toronto won the women's 1500 metres in 4:23.1. Kathy Leader of Waterloo, Ont., was second in 4:24.8. Abby Hoffman of Toronto, who is on the Canadian Olympic Team, pulled up while in contention with about 300 metres remaining with an undisclosed injury.

Loud Taaffe Tune Has Sweet Sounds

Victoria Bates can afford to give Ken Bate, nursing a groin injury, an extra day's rest because there's nothin wrong with Mike Taaffe.

Taffe hummed the loudest tune at the plate to spark a four-game sweep that virtually wrapped up first-place honors for Victoria in the Pacific Coast Men's Fastball League.

Bates clipped last-place New Westminster Royal Towers 2-1 and 15-0 Saturday and then scored 5-4 and 1-0 decisions over second-place Vancouver Magicians on Sunday. The mainland sweep lifted Bates five full games ahead of Vancouver.

Bates, now with a glossy 27-3 won-lost record in league play, have six games left to play. The Magicians have eight remaining.

The mild-mannered Taaffe has been somewhat of a forgotten man in the Victoria outfield. Although playing regularly, he usually takes a back seat to the exploits of Bate, Harvey Stevenson and Reg Underwood.

Because of the groin injury, coach Joseph Patterson didn't rush Bate into action at the weekend. Taaffe got a chance for a full tour of duty and responded magnificently.

He went four-for-four at the plate in Saturday's 15-0 romp over the Royal Towers. He added two more hits in the 5-4 decision over Vancouver and came back to score the only run in the final weekend game for Bates.

Taaffe led off the seventh with a single. Bate, making his first appearance as a pinch-hitter for Walt Burrows, then slashed a lusty double off the wall to score Taaffe with the game's only run.

It's not that Victoria's other outfielders were slouches.

Underwood marred a strong performance by New Westminster's Jim Mills by getting Victoria's only hit to score Bob Burrows with the winning run in the 2-1 victory.

Underwood also clouted a two-run homer in Saturday's second game while Stevenson unloaded a two-run shot in Sunday's first victory over the Magicians.

And the recovering Bate, of course, did his job in his brief outing.

Dave Ruthowsky and Andy Konopacki both won two decisions. Ruthowsky checked Westminster on two hits Saturday and blanked Magicians on seven hits in the 1-0 game.

Konopacki scored the other shutout with a route-going performance Saturday and then won Sunday when he came on in relief of Stan Kern.

OPTIMISTS GAIN RUTH FINAL

Saanich Evening Optimists moved into the final of the Victoria District Babe Ruth baseball playoffs for 13-year-olds Sunday with a 13-6 victory over Layritz at Lambrick Park.

The triumph was the second for Evening Optimists in the four-team, double-loss elimination tournament. The final is slated for Lambrick Park Tuesday at 6:15 p.m. and Evening Optimists will play the winner of tonight's contest between Layritz and Esquimalt-Victoria, also starting at 6:15.

If Evening Optimists lose, they get a second chance Wednesday at 6:15 p.m.

The winner advances to the provincial 13-year-old finals starting in Trail July 24.

Earlier Sunday, Esquimalt-Victoria eliminated the host Gordon Head Cosmopolitans 26-2. The winners scored 15 runs in the first inning, 13 of them before anybody was out. They sent 19 players to bat in the inning, including Eddie Nelms, who batted three times, He singled, walked and ground out, drove in one run and scored two.

The loss was Cosmos' second after losing 10-0 Saturday to Evening Optimists. Winning pitcher Mike Bull tossed a one-hitter, holding Cosmos hitless until Graham Rumley singled in the last inning.

In Saturday's other game, Layritz edge Esquimalt-Victoria 11-10, scoring the winning run on a wild pitch in the last inning.

Nats Out as Rally Fails

National, Layritz and Central Saanich all-star teams Sunday became the first casualties in the Victoria area Little League baseball playoffs.

All suffered their second straight losses in the three-area, double-knockout playdowns.

Central Saanich and Layritz may have suffered the most embarrassing sidetracking, but Nationals suffered the hardest blow.

Beaten 7-0 by the American League in Saturday's opening round, the Nationals were eliminated by Lakehill, 6-5, Sunday. But for the want of a timely base hit, the Nationals might have still been alive today.

The Nats stranded nine runners in the area one game at Hillside Park, including three in the final inning when a rousing rally just fell short.

Trailing 6-1 after five innings, the Nats struck for four runs and had the bases loaded when Lakehill came through with the final out.

Layritz, beaten 22-2 by Hampton in the area two confrontation at Sidney's Sanscha Park on Saturday, bowed out by losing 12-5 to Beacon Hill on Sunday.

Central Saanich bowed to host Esquimalt, 12-5, in the area three playoffs at the Lampson Street Park and then fell 28-0 to Triangle on Sunday. Bob Weeds blanked Central Saanich with a smart one-hitter Sunday while Steve Betts and Rocky Horne both blasted three-run homers to highlight a 10-hit attack.

Action continues tonight with crucial battles between all first-round winners. The strong-hitting Americans face Oak Bay, who defeated Lakehill 4-2 Saturday, at the Jaycee Park on Hillside; Sidney, which conquered Beacon Hill 7-3, meets Hampton at Sanscha Park, and Esquimalt goes against Gordon Head on the Lampson Street diamond.

Gordon Head downed Triangle 8-3 in Saturday's other game.

Pirates Keep Alive

The Associated Press

Save the wreaths. Hold the obituaries.

That "body" in baseball's National League East is still kicking.

Take it from manager Danny Murtaugh—Pittsburgh Pirates aren't dead yet.

"We haven't given up yet," said Murtaugh on Sunday as the Pirates ended first half of the season 10 games behind Philadelphia Phillies.

Pittsburgh had just swept two successive games from Cincinnati Reds for a split of a four-game series. The Pirates won 8-5 Sunlay after taking their Saturday game 7-1.

In Sunday's other National League games, Atlanta Braves nipped New York Mets 9-8, Los Angeles Dodgers stopped St. Louis Cardinals 9-6, San Francisco Giants beat Chicago Cubs 2-0, Philadelphia Phillies blanked San Diego Padres 3-0 and Houston Astros shaded Montreal Expos 1-0.

"Anytime you are 10 games back it's a big job, but it's still July," said Murtaugh.

"Anything can happen in two months," said Tommy Helms, who was hit by a bases-loaded pitch from Pedro Bobon to score the go-ahead-run in Sunday's victory.

"This club does not panic," said Helms, an ex-Red who walked earlier to force is a run.

The Pirates cracked a 4-4 tie in the eighth inning with a three-run rally highlighted by Rennie Stennett's two-run bases-loaded double. Murtaugh the pressed starter Jerry Reuss into bullpen duty to preserve the victory.

Kent Tekulve, though he pitched to only one batter, was credited with the victory after relieving Jim Rooker. Borbon, 2-2, absorbed the loss.

Willie Montanez drove in six runs for the Braves, three of them with an eighth-inning double. Starters Jerry Koosman and Tom Seaver, with a three-day all-star rest in sight, made rare relief appearances for the Mets.

Reggie Smith's three-run homer highlighted a seven-run seventh inning for the Dodgers at St. Louis. It was Smith's third homer in the Dodgers' weekend series with former team-mates. Los Angeles starter Don Sutton picked up the victory in relief.

In the American league, Boston Red Sox defeated Minnesota Twins 6-4; New York Yankees blanked Chicago White Sox 5-0; Detroit Tigers edged Kansas City 6-5 in 12 innings; Baltimore Orioles downed California Angels 3-1; Oakland A's whipped Cleveland Indians 9-3 and Milwaukee Brewers took Texas Rangers twice 6-9 and 5-4.

SOVIET TOSSER SNAPS RECORD

PARIS (AP) — Russia's Alexander Barishnikov set a world record in the shot put in a French-Soviet track and field meet Saturday with a mark of 22 metres (72 feet 2⅛ inches) on his first throw. Barishnikov's performance beat by 15 centimetres the world record of 21.85 metres set by Terry Albritton of Hawaii in February.

The six-foot-seven, 275-pound Barishnikov had held the European record for more than two years with a throw of 21.70 metres. He is well known for an unusual technique, turning vigorously around himself before his throw.

PLAYOFF FOR CROWN

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Defending-chapion Sandra Palmer holed a five-foot putt on the 18th green to tie JoAnne Carner at eight-over-par 292 Sunday and sent the U.S. Women's Open golf championship into an 18-hole playoff today.

Mrs. Carner, who won the Open title in 1971, shot 36-37—73 in Sunday's final round and then watched from just off the 18th green as the steel-nerved Miss Palmer holed the putt that sent the tournament into a play-off.

Miss Palmer carded a four-over-par 40-35-75 on the final round.

Mrs. Carner, the longest hitter among women golfers, completed the 72 holes with 71-71-77-73 for her 292. Miss Palmer, who won last year at Atlantic City, N.J., wound up with 70-74-73-75—292.

JoAnne, who gained two shots on her rival in the final round, took over the lead with a birdie on the 17th hole, but Sandra regained a share of first place by rolling in a 20-foot biridie putt on the same hole to set the stage for her tie-saving putt on the 18th.

Jane Blalock, taking two shots to get out of a bunker on Sunday's 16th hole, finished third, four strokes behind the leaders.

Susie McAllister shot a final-round 73 for 297 and fourth place, two strokes ahead of Sharon Miller and Amy Alcott.

TWO MEMBERS of New Zealand national softball team that shared world title with Victoria Bate and Reading, Pa., of United States earlier this year, will be in lineup for Surfside Ramblers of Auckland in games here this week. They are Kevin Herlihy (above), New Zealand's ace pitcher, and shortstop Paul Rogers. Auckland will meet Bates in double-header at Athletic Park, Tuesday at 7 and 9 p.m., and Sidney Men's League All-Stars at Sanscha Park, Sidney, Wednesday at 6:30.

Ballesteros: Everywhere A Hero, Unknown at Home

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — Only one journalist from Spain was known to be at the British Open to see his young countryman Severiano Ballesteros leap into the international golfing spotlight.

And that sportswriter didn't write a word.

He told his boss earlier that he would be at the Open on vacation, and asked if his paper wanted a story. His boss said no.

That's the way it is in Spain, and even more so in the rest of Europe. Soccer is king, with sports such as cycling and rugby ahead of golf.

So while 19-year-old Severiano caught the imagination of golf fans in Canada, the United States, Britain and Japan, where the Open was televized he probably remains a relative unknown in his own country, where it was not shown.

But his exciting performance—he led for three rounds against the best in the world before falling to Johnny Miller in the final round Sturday—is a swing in the right direction for golf on the continent.

Miller won the Open with a final-round 66 for 279 and the largest margin of victory, six strokes, in more than 40 years at this event.

Ballesteros, who shared the lead after the first round and held it alone after the second and third rounds, faded to a 74 and needed an eagle and birdie on the final two holes to get that.

He wound up tied for second with Jack Nicklaus who finished with a 69.

"He gave the biggest boost possible for European golf," said Gaetan Morgue D'Algue of France, publisher of a golf magazine and organizer of many European golf tournaments.

Knudson Closes Well To Take CPGA Crown

WINNIPEG (CP) — George Knudson of Toronto steadied his game after an erratic front nine Sunday and held off Dave Barr of Kelowna, B.C., to capture the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association championship for the fourth time.

Knudson shot a final round three-under-par 69 to finish with a 275 total, 13 under par on the St. Charles Country Club course. He picked up $10,000 for the two-shot victory over Barr who had a final round 67 and won $7,500.

Third-round leader Adrien Bigras of Rosemere, Que., shot a two-over-par 74 to finish third at 279 and win $5,000.

Mark Shushak of Thunder Bay, Ont., shot 69 Sunday to grab fouth place with 281. That earned him $4,000 and an exemption in the Canadian Open. The other Canadian Open berth available from the CPGA went to Bob Rose of Hamilton, who beat Michel Boyer of Montreal in a playoff for the berth.

The St. Charles course is where Knudson learned to play golf, and he readily admits his familiarity with the course was an advantage.

But even this was not enough to keep him out of trouble on the first nine holes Sunday. The veteran touring pro had four birdies, three bogeys and only two pars and was tied with Bigras going into the final nine holes.

Knudson settled down on the back nine, with only one bogey, to go with three birdies and five pars.

Playing in the same threesome as Knudson, Barr picked up birdies on the 14th, 15th and 17th holes to chase Knudson to the wire.

Defending champion Bill Tape of Kettleby, Ont., was never in contention, shooting a final round 75 for a 289 total to finish well back.

John Morgan of Victoria finished with a two-under par 70 for a 72-hole total of 287, good for 14th place. He earned $570. Bill Wakeham of Cowichan had a final round 75 for a 292 total. He finished in a tie for 30th place and earned $280.

Lister First Foreign Winner

MOLINE, Ill. (AP) — New Zealand's lanky John Lister became the first foreign player to win a Professional Golfers Association (PGA) tournament this year, running away from the Quad Cities Open field with a four-under par 67, two shots better than second-place Fuzzy Zoeller.

The victory Sunday in the 72-hole, $100,000 tournament was worth $20,000 to the 29-year-old Lister, who had been 67th on the PGA list of money winners this year at $24,637.

It was Lister's first American tournament victory since starting the tour in 1971. He also became the seventh player to claim his first tournament this year.

Lister had rounds of 65-68-68-67 for a total 268 on the par 71, 6,305-yard Oakwood Country Club course.

Rex Caldwell had a two-under 69 and finsihed third at 272, George Archer was fourth a 275, Tommy McGinnis followed at 276 and Barry Jaeckel and Bud Allin tied for sixth at 277.

BUCHANAN BOYS WRECK NANAIMO

The family that plays together makes for a good attack.

It works, at least, for the Albion entry in the Victoria and District Cricket Association.

The Buchanan brothers presented a formidable attack Sunday as Albion scored a five-wicket victory over Nanaimo to move into second place.

Albion scored 180 for the loss of only five wickets before declaring — and then turned the Buchanans loose. Nanaimo managed only 86 runs before losng its 10 wickets.

John Buchanan took three wickets for a cost of 25 runs, Jim three for 13 and Steve two for 10. Albion's other bowler, Alex Porter, took the remaining two wickets.

Dick Beal scored 83 runs for Albion while Jon Callender added 32.

Incogs, meanwhile, protected their hold on first place with a six-wicket triumph over Cowichan.

Penalty Goals Benefit Velox

Penalty goals provided the difference Saturday as Saanich Velox of the Vancouver Island Rugby Union's first division edged sailors from Australia's visiting HMAS Stuart 14-12 in an exhibition match at the University of Victoria.

Mike Adams and Ross Rose scored Velox tries while Mike Smith booted two penalty goals. Barry Turner and Larry Wood scored tries, both converted by Ray Que, for the Australian side.

Timbermen Blasted

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — New Westminster Salmonbellies unleashed the strongest attack of this Western Lacrosse Association season with a 19-10 drubbing of Nanaimo Timbermen Saturday.

Salmonbellies, who moved to within one point of second-place Vancouver Burrards, fired 76 shots at Nanaimo goakkeeper John Lewis who made many excellent saves. It was the greatest number of shots on goal in a league game this year.

Nanaimo remains in fourth place, four points ahead of fifth-place Coquitlam Adanacs.

Brian Tasker led the Salmonbellies assault with five goals and three assists. Jim Johnston added three goals and four assists. Other goals were scored by Darryl McColl, Steve D'Easum, Walt Weaver, Bill Mosdell, Wayne Goss, John Hannah, Jan Magee, Dave St. Jean, Chuck Medhurst, Ken Winzoski and Dave Wilfong.

Bob Wasson led Nanaimo with four goals and an assist. Rick Baker scored three times. Gord Osinchuk, Brian Evans, and Jim Wasson added one goal each.

New Westminster jumped to a 7-3 first-period lead and held a margin of 13-6 at the end of the second.

Norton in 10th

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Heavyweight boxing contender Ken Norton warmed up for his September fight against champion Muhammad Ali by punishing unranked Larry Middleton and winning on a 10th-round knockout when referee Rudy Jordan stopped the fight.

Norton clearly led the bout at the San Diego Sports Arena, but Middleton fought back throughout the 10 rounds despite a cut inside his mouth and a bruise under his left eye.

Middleton and his handlers objected loudly to Jordan's decision to end the bout at 2:07 of the scheduled final round.

The 31-year-old ex-marine from San Deigo weighed 222½ pounds for this warmup gamble against the 34-year-old Middleton. A loss by Norton would have seriously jeopardized his Sept. 28 date with Ali in Yankee Stadium, where the challenger stands to earn up to $2.5 million.

He earned $50,000 for the Middleton fight.

Hornets Practice

Saanich Hornets of the Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League will start workouts at Glanford Park this evening. Players seeking additional information are asked to contact Barry Taylor (592-7554).

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

If just one deal had to be selected to demonstrate the precarious position of a player finding himself on the brink of disaster, from which escape seemed impossible, and extricating himself, I believe today's deal would portray it. Our heroine (a "her", not a "him), was a diminutive lady who was playing in a game with three rough men. The lady was Mrs. Barbara Tepper, of New Jersey, and her stature increased appreciably after the deal had been played out.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
3 ♡	4 ♠	Pass	5 ◇
Pass	6 ♠	Dbl.	6 NT
Pass	Pass	Dbl.	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♡.

Mrs. Tepper perceived quickly that, if she won the opening lead with her heart ace, there would be no way to re-enter the South hand to cash the diamonds after dummy's ace of diamonds was played, except in the club suit. Of course, if the latter were attempted, a defender would hop up with the club ace and run a "few dozen" heart tricks.

It was equally apparent to declarer that even if the five outstanding spades were divided 3-2 (which they weren't going to be, based on East's double of the six-spade bid), declarer couldn't honestly make more then nine tricks.

So declarer allowed West to win the opening lead with his king of hearts! West now made the normal continuation of the heart queen, upon which declarer discarded dummy's diamond ace, South winning the trick with the heart ace. When South next led the king and queen of diamonds, the queen caught the jack (a wondrous sight for declarer to behold). Four more diamond tricks were then cashed, after which she led her last diamond. Dummy's last five cards were the A-K-Q-9 of spades and the club king. East held the J-10-8-3 of spades and the ace of clubs. South had the spade five, the Q-10-7 of clubs, and the diamond deuce, which she was leading.

On the diamond deuce, dummy's king of clubs was discarded. East was squeezed. If he tossed away a spade, dummy's four spades would all be winners. And if, instead, he discarded the club ace, South's queen of clubs would become her 12th trick.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"It should have an index," said Bill, leafing through the big catalogue. "There must be getting on for a thousand pages and I don't know where to look."

Hank chuckled. "Come on, there aren't that many, but I do know the page," he declared. "If you subtract the numbers formed by its first two digits you get one less than seven times the number formed by its last two. So now figure it out."

You try!

Thanks for idea to L. M. Major, Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Building Wages Headache

By PAULINE GRAVES

Can yo uimagine building a house in which the wages of each workman is calculated on a different basis? Today, regardless of the trade, a time rate, usually by the hour, determines workmen's payments. In Colonial times, as if building weren't difficult enough, each craft had its own formula. For instance, glaziers were paid by the superficial foot, bricklayers by the square rod, plasterers by the square yard, masons by foot measure, either lineal, square or cubical, and carpenters on surface work by 100 square feet.

When the small house pictured here was built, prior to 1704, such payment undoubtedly prevailed, if, in fact, there were payments as such. No one knows for sure the exact history of the "Old Dutch House," as it is called, which now fuctions as a museum, except that it is the only survivor in original form of the earliest period in New Castle, Delaware. The high, peaked roof and the low pent eaves projecting over the front and rear of the house are characteristic of Dutch architecture at that time.

The classic style, simple and charming, depends on the basic structural design for its attractiveness, and because it is honest, could be built today. We would probably want more and larger windows to lighten the interiors, but otherwise the tall chimneys, the lapped siding on the upper story and the absence of superficial ornamentation would be a welcome addition to a traditionally styled neighborhood.

Skin Care—Five Steps

SASKATOON (CP) — Care of the skin is a personalized procedure, says Fely Aranjuez, a Philippines-born cosmetologist, but there are five steps that are basic for everybody—cleansing, facial massage, moisturizing, toning and enrichment.

Aranjuez, who now lives in Toronto, was in Saskatoon recently to conduct a skin-care clinic where she offered advice and gave demonstrations on makeup application and the selection of products suited to each type of skin.

"Depending on whether your skin is oily or dry, you should choose a cream or lotion cleanser. Your skin is oily if it appears shiny and the pores are large and open. For the most oily patches it may be necessary to use an oil-blotting product.

"Dry skin is usually fine-textured and taut, with a powdery look. Lines may be evident, especially in the forehead area. Dry skin is often sensitive and there may be broken veins. These can be masked with makeup, but moisturing is essential for this type of skin."

Aranjuez said soap and water should not be used daily because of their drying-out qualities. "If you like the foamy feel of soap, there are cleansing products that give this effect."

The second step in skin care is massage, usually done in an upward-stroking motion, circularly around yes and the mouth and downward upon the nose.

By LYNN and JOEL RAPP

Dear Lynn and Joel:

I hear so much arguing over the relative benefits (or lack of benefits) of regular clay pots and plastic pots. Could you give me some kind of definitive answer as to which is better for your house plants?—Audrey M.

Dear Audrey:

Not really. It is true that the root systems of plants have to breathe, and they can't breathe through plastic pots as they can through clay ones, but there is a method of getting plenty of oxygen to your plants no matter what kind of container they're in. It's called "aerating" the soil, and all you need is a fork. No, we're not suggesting you eat your philodendrons — just poke the fork around the soil of plants about once a month, always working up from the outer rim of the pot to the centre. Be careful not to till the soil too deeply lest you injure the roots. Root band-aids are not only expensive, but difficult to find.

Wire Service Strike Threat

TORONTO (CP) — The negotiating committee for the Canadian Wire Service Guild representing employees of The Canadian Press and its subsidiary, Broadcast News, has recommended that a conciliation report be rejected and the committee be authorized to take job action "up to and including a strike," if no agreement is reached.

The approximately 275 employees in the bargaining unit will be in a legal strike position July 14.

Olivia Plays Supporting Role for Her Daughter

New York Times

NEW YORK — What is Olivia de Havilland doing these days? To listen to her tell it, she is playing a supporting role to a girl she describes as a "ravishing 19-year-old." She and Gisele Galante, her daughter by her second husband, Pierre Galante, live in Paris and she describes her main function as answering the telephone and taking messages when her daughter's many beaux call.

"It's Rene, or Olivier or Bruni," she ticks off on her fingers. "When she gives a party, I help with the cooking. I live a vicarious existence. I went to work at 18, I never never lived the normal life of a young girl."

De Havilland

She and Gisele, who is a second-year law student at the University of Paris, live in the 16th Arondissement, two doors away from the private residence of French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing. His red spaniel and her daughter's French bulldog are acquainted and loathe each other. The bulldog was relieved when his enemy moved to the Elysee Palace.

"Our dog has delusions of grandeur," she said. At 60, Hollywood's "perfect lady" is plumper and cozier than in the days she was playing virginal heroines in costume movies. In her beige silk, Chanel-like suit and neat navy pumps, she looks like an exceptionally pretty suburban matron. The long dark hair is now short, reddish and curly and her complexion is a technicolor dream.

She is not exactly a stranger to mother roles. In her last movie — "Light in the Piazza" in 1961 — she played a mother who connived and fought like a tigress for the happiness of her brain-damaged daughter. She is even more serious in her part as Gisele's mother.

She punctuates her conversation with whoops of laughter when she describes the men she dated and didn't marry (Howard Hughes, John Huston and Edward Heath, Britain's former Prime Minister) and the two she did.

Errol Flynn was her first love. Her eyes fill with tears when she talks of his death — "I cried for 24 hours when I heard about it." Her reason for her New York trip was to help promote a 34-film "Salute to Warners" retrospective at the Regency theatre. She appears in four of the films, three with Flynn.

She was a starry-eyed 19 when she made "Captain Blood," her first movie with the Great Swashbuckler. They were to make eight films together.

"I had a great crush on him," she related. "Eventually, he got one on me. It was inevitable to fall in love with him. He was so naughty and so charming. His roistering life was not as attractive as his film life. I saw another side of him: a thoughtful, Irish-tweed-and-book, side." But the timing, she said, was wrong for them. Flynn was always otherwise entangled.

In 1948 she married Marcus Goodrich. They were divorced in 1952. She married her second husband, Pierre Galante, editor of Paris-Match, in 1955. They have been separated, though not divorced, for a decade.

If she were starting in films now, would she agree to take of her clothes? Emphatically no.

"This explicit business is not sexy," she said. "The scene iny "Gone with the-Wind," when Rhett carries Scarlett upstairs and her scene in "Gone with the — that was sexier than sex." However, she thought the scenes in the French "A Man and a Woman" appropos and moving. "When I got home, I was trembling and drank a half bottle of champabne."

Vancouver Couple's Lofty Plan Adopted

elizabeth forbes

Heather and Rolf Kellerhals

Heather and Rolf Kellerhals are young marrieds living in Vancouver.

He is a consulting engineer and hydrologist. She writes delightful children's stories with names like Muktu-The Backward Muskox.

They have two children, Erika, 12 years, and Markus, nine.

As a family they love the outdoors. And when they are up in the Chilco Lake district, where they have a piece of property, they enjoy climbing the ridges and peaks of Coast Range mountains in that area.

Back in August, 1975, when the Kellerhals, their children, and friends, Basil Dunell, Win and Norman Purssell and their daughters, Tanis and Eileen, were together up north, they climbed a mountain at the head of Girdwood Creek.

From that vantage point they could see a whole ridge of spectacular peaks and immediately they began to check through maps they carried to find the names.

Much to the surprise of the entire party, it turned out those peaks were unnamed.

With that discovery it wasn't long until the Kellerhals and their friends were wondering aloud what they would call them, if they were doing surveying and mapping.

That was back in International Women's Year, you must remember.

So, you can understand that Heather Kellerhals, an ardent advocate of women's rights, would soon come up with the thought of honoring some of Canada's outstanding women.

The idea caught fire. Names came thick and fast. And before the party started down the mountain again, a decision had been made.

Rolf Kellerhals would write to the survey and mapping branch of the federal department of lands, forests and water resources, describing the peaks and suggesting names that would tie in with the meaning and purpose of International Women's Year.

That letter went forward in mid-December last year. It submitted an over-all mane, The Liberated Group, for the mountains.

Why Not was suggested for one of the peaks (remember the IWY lapel button!) Names sent in for the others were as follows:

Nellie McClung, a key organizer of the suffrage movement in western Canada and one of The Famous Five who originated a Supreme Court petition which eventually established women as persons in the meaning of the British North America Act, and opened the way for them to sit in the Senate of Canada.

Charlotte Whitton, first woman mayor of Ottawa, and Agnes Macphail, first womon member of Parliament.

Emily Murphy (Janey Canuck) first woman police magistrate in Edmonton and originator of the Supreme Court Petition mentioned above.

Carrie Derick, first woman professor at a Canadian university and active in the suffrage movement in Montreal.

Kit Coleman, pioneer Canadian woman journalist, and Emily Howard-Stowe, founder of the Dominion Women's Enfranchisement Association and the first woman medical doctor in Canada.

Roberta MacAdams and Louise McKenney, both of Alberta and the first two women MLAs in Canada. The latter was also a co-signer of the Supreme Court petition above.

Irene Parlby, minister without portfolio in the Alberta government in 1921 and Henrietta Edwards. Both were co-signers of the Supreme Court petition.

Within two weeks, a reply came to Kellerhals, telling him his suggestions had been accepted and that the last names of each of the women were being processed for the Liberated Group of peaks.

Also that the word "Mountain" had geen added to Why Not and it would appear as Why Not Mountain.

When Kellerhals sent in names for The Liberated Group he also described some mountains between Franklyn Arm and Trecroft Creek, overlooking the Nemaia Valley, that were also unnamed.

He called them The Capital Group and as some were surrounded by water on two sides, suggested a few names be in a nautical theme and taken from a song—A Captial Ship—by Charles Edward Carryl, copy of which he enclosed.

These ideas were also accepted and the mountains in The Capital Group will, in future, be known as Capital Peak, Tickletoeteaser Tower, Boatswain Mountain, Anagazander Mountain, Farm Mountain and Silo Tower — this last a very prominent and unusual silo-like pillar.

Other names accepted for that area are Snow Dwarf Ridge, Mt. Snow White, Gulliby Creek and Rubagub Creek.

This delightful true story came to me, quite by accident, when I happened to be present at a smorgasbord supper where Heather Kellerhals' mother, Mrs. Roy A. Stewart of this city, was also a guest.

A few days later I talked to Mrs. Stewart again and learned more of the details.

Enough to introduce the Kellerhals to you here and to their successful attempt to name some of our mountains in an imaginative and interesting way.

Postscript — A detailed write-up of the climb made by the Kellerhals, the Purssells and Basil Dunell in August, 1975, appeared in the Canadian Alpine Journal for 1975.

Nothing to Sniff At

DEAR ABBY: Something bothers me, and I would like your opinion and the opinion of others who have dealt with this problem.

Is it considered proper to smell food that is served to you before eating it?

I am seriously considering marrying a man who does this, and I find it extremely irritating and embarrassing. He smells the food in the finest restaurants, at the homes of friends and even at my home. It's not just a quick sniff — he puts his nose right down near the food and smells it thoroughly!

We are both in our late 50s and have been married before. Outside of this one fault, he is intelligent, charming and delightful company. But I'm not sure I could sit down for three meals a day with a man who has this disgusting habit. Or am I too picky?—PICKY ME

DEAR PICKY: Diplomatically tell the gentleman that his habit bothers you and suggest that he be less obvious about it. Don't insist that he drop the habit unless you want to drop him. Old habits die hard.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I disagree on something and hope you can settle it.

Is it all right to tell a hostess to please put the dogs and cats out of sight during dinner?

The situation is as follows: My wife's mother has two dogs and three cats who have the run of the house. I don't mind pets if they are clean-looking and don't stay under my feet all the time. My mother-in-law's pets are always on her lap. She feeds them while she eats and serves others, which spoils my appetite.

Also, one dog is part St. Bernard, and he drools and slobbers all the time, which also isn't very appetizing. Plus the cats seem to have chronic eczema, and their visible sores turn my stomach.

My wife says Mom's pets are like her "children," and as guests, we should look the other way and not say anything.

I say, I should politely ask Mom to please put the pets in another room while we're eating.

What do you say?—WEAK STOMACH

DEAR WEAK: If your description of the pets is accurate, I'm with you all the way!

DEAR ABBY: You've had several letters in your column from young girls who have been sexually abused by their fathers, stepfathers or "funny uncles." But I've never seen a letter from a young boy who had been used in that way by a female relative.

I was that kind of a victim until I was nearly 10 years old, but I was bribed and threatened so I never told anyone.

Abby, please continue to alert all parents to keep their eyes open where their children are concerned. And tell young people not to be afraid to report such improper activities to a teacher, a trusted adult friend, relative or even the local police. Also, the Children's Protectiive Society and or the county welfare department can help. MY SISTER'S VICTIM

DEAR VICTIM: I have and I shall continue to do so. This problem is far more widespread than most people suspect.

Hand Around the House

By A. J. HAND

The air conditioning season is here. Is your air conditioner ready for it? Probably not, if you're a typical homeowner.

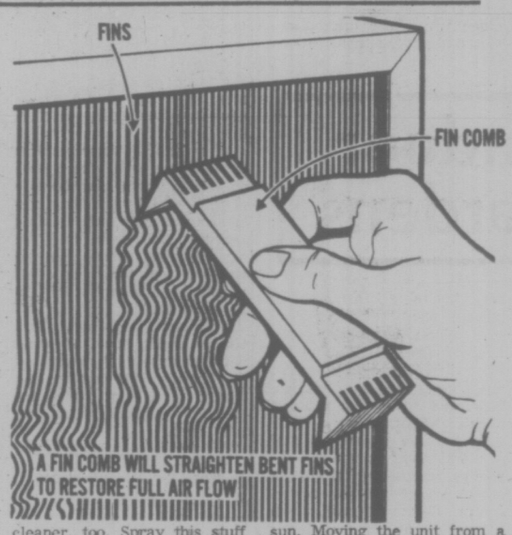
Most likely the filters and coils on your air conditioner are dirty, some fins are bent or the motor needs oiling. All these problems will cut efficiency, raise your cooling costs, strain your air conditioner and the nation's energy supplies.

Take care of these problems now and you'll get more cool at lower cost all summer long.

Start with the filter. Usually you can reach this by removin a panel on the front of the air conditioner. Clean or replace the filter (check your owner's manual to see which method applies to your unit). Repeat this procedure at least once a month all summer. Clogged filters cut down on air flow. This cuts efficiency, of course, but also result in the icing up of the evaporator coils. Result? Now air flow at all, and no cooling at all.

While you have the filter out of the machine, check the coil behind it for dirt accumulation and bent fins. Check the condenser coil on the outdoor side of the air conditioner, too. Evaporator coils are less prone to bending since they're prtected, but condensers are exposed and their fins are often bent. If you find bent fins, you can straighten them with a fin comb, sold at air conditioner supply outlets. Be sure t oget a comb that matches the fins-per-inch count of your coils. If you don't want to bother tracing down a fin comb you can usually straighten fins by picking at them carefully with pointed wooden stick.

While you're getting the comb, pick up some coil cleaner, too. Spray this stuff on dirty soils, let it soak for half an hour, then hose it off. A powerful spray cleaner will work in a pinch.



Does your air-conditioner fan motor require lubrication? Check you manual to find out. If so, lube according to directions. This will not only give you better cooling, it may help reduce noise.

While you're thinking about cooling efficiency, study the way your air conditioner is installed. It will cool with less power if it's shaded from the sun. Moving the unit from a south or west window to an east (good) or north (better) window will help. So will shading with shrubs, as long as the plantings don't interfere with air flow.

Free air flow is important inside your home, too. Be sure no furniture or draperies block the exit of cool air from the air conditioner. You'll get better cooling if you direct the air-flow louvers so that the cool air flows upwards and toward the centre of the space you wish to cool. Directing the air upwards helps eliminate the stratification that puts all the cool air down on the floor where you can't feel it, all the hot air up in your face.

If your air conditioner has a two-speed fan, the higher speed will keep the air moving in your home. Air movement speeds evaporation of perspiration from your skin, which makes you feel cooler even on hot days.

RED SHIELD

The Salvation Army exceeded its $160,000 quota in its 1976 Red Shield campaign for funds Harry Young, campaign chairman said today.

Donations collected by more than 2,000 volunteer canvassers will be used to maintain and carry on the army's humanitarian services in the Greater Victoria area.

By MICHAEL LAMM

DEAR MIKE: I am an appliance salesman and through a lot of hard work and luck, I recently won a 1972 Cadillac El Classico. The car, though used, is in perfect condition and runs like a top. I was led to believe that Cadillac made only five of these cars and that three have since been wrecked. The local Cad dealer, however, has never heard of an El Classico, and I couldn't find out anything about it from Cadillac customer relations in Detroit. Perhaps you can help. — El CLASSICO.

DEAR EL: Most likely it's a dealer custom. Dealers often doll up certain models. For instance, when Lincoln first began to put opera windows in the Mark IV, a big Pontiac dealer in California installed these windows in Grand Prix. He gave these cars fancy names, repainted them in flashy colors, and advertised them at $1,000 above book. I feel your El Classico is in the same vein.

DEAR MIKE: Would the wrong gasoline cause the valves in my 1971 Buick to burn? At 50,000 miles, I had to have the valves ground in my 350-inch LeSabre V-8. I've been using mostly regular-grade gas, with some high-test, but I can't tell any difference in performance. The owner's manual recommends low-lead or unleaded fuel of at least 91 octane. Most gasolines nowadays are under 91 octane, especially low-lead and unleaded. — CONFUSED.

DEAR CONFUSED: First, I can't believe your 1971 owner's manual recommends low-lead. There's no point in it for your car. Some engineers, in fact, claim that low-lead and unleaded fuel in older engines causes valve burning, although I've never had direct confirmation.

About octane rating — in 1971, the industry was using what we now call the "old numbers." More recently, the government mandated a new system of octane ratings, with the result that present numbers are lower. Some gas, lower octane, and it's very confusing to everyone. The thing to remember, though, is to buy the least expensive gasoline that doesn't cause your engine to ping, be it regular or high-test. Forget octane numbers. (For later-model cars with catalytic converters, of course, you do have to use unleaded fuel only.)

DEAR MIKE: When I leave my 1972 Camaro's headlights on for any length of time during night driving, the switch feels hot to the touch. Is this normal? — HOT SWITCH.

DEAR HOT: No, although it's not uncommon. Most often the heat comes from the rheostat for your dashboard lights — that part of the switch that lets you twist to dim and brighten gauge illumination. Your rheostat isn't making good contact. The most practical cure is to replace the entire switch, and I do recommend you do that.

DEAR MIKE: I have a 1968 Mustang with a tired 302-cid V-8. What's the latest engine I can install that'll match right up to my transmission and motor mounts? — 1968 HOPEFUL.

DEAR HOPE: Any 302-, 351-, or 400-inch Ford or Mercury V-8 up to and including 1976 will fit. The later models might give you minor exhaust clearance problems, though.

Dumplings Don't Have to Be Soggy

By HILDA BEASTALL

Dumplings don't have to be soggy lumps of dough floating (or sinking) in a beef stew. The same mixture may be used as a light crusty topping to a juicy vegetable pie which cleverly contains the liver so often recommended for twice weekly meals.

If using the oven for baking cookies or muffins, plan to make the pie version first. Then another day, with all the same ingredients and method, make it into a steamed meal in a large saucepan with the dumplings dropped on top. You'll like it either way.

hilda beastall

VEGETABLE LIVER PIE WITH CRUST

1 Tbsp. soft margarine
½ pound sliced pork liver
2 Tbsp. sliced onion OR
1 Tbsp chopped chives
½ cup water or veg. stock
½ cup diced potato
½ cup diced celery
½ cup diced carrots
½ cup green peas
¼ cup chopped comfrey
1 Tbsp. chopped parsley
Salt to season
Rice dumplings (see below).

In large skillet or frypan with cover, melt margarine. Cook sliced liver and onion for few minutes, turning frequently to avoid toughening. Lower heat and cook only until red juices cease. Remove liver from pan.

Add tomatoes, celery, potatoes and carrots, with water or vegetable stock just to cover sufficiently for cooking. Cover and cook quickly until almost tender. Add green peas, comfrey and parsley. cook for about 5 minutes after bringing back to simmering. Season with a minimum of salt.

Meanwhile sliver the liver on a board with a knife and fork, making it into thin slivers, not chunks.

Put liver into caserole baking dish. When vegetables are partially cooked, add to liver and mix lightly. Make Dumplings.

RICE DUMPLINGS

1 cup unbleached flour
¼ cup wheat germ
1 Tbsp. brewer's yeast (torula)
½ tsp. baking powder
3 Tbsp. soft margarine
½ cup cooked brown rice
¼ cup cold water or veg. stock

Mix first 4 ingredients in a bowl. Fork in margarine until mixture is crumbly. Add cold cooked rice (it should be practically dry).

Add water gradually, using only enough to hold mixture together. Spread in mounds over top of lover-vegetable misture in casserole.

Bake in moderate oven 177 degs. C. for about 40 minutes until well browned. To make a softer crust, put on casserole lid for first 30 minutes; remove for 15 minutes to brown a little.

To make a steamed dish from this recipe, use either a suitably large saucepan with tight fitting lid, or for larger quantity, a Dutch oven with a lid.

Prepare liver and vegetables in the same manner as described, combining the two in the saucepan instead of the casserole. Bring to gentle boil, covered with lid. Let mixture continue cooking while making dumplings.

Make the Rice Dumplings, and drop by small spoonfuls over the surface of gently bubbling vegetables. If liquid seems insufficient, add a little boiling water and mix well before adding dumplings.

Cover with lid and simmer for 30 minutes without raising lid. Dumplings will be light when steamed this way, but soggy if liquid drops below gently simmering or if lid is raised during cooking period.

Serve at once while bubbling hot. Serves 4.

Either method of cooking makes a fine nutritious meal including many extra-good foods, some of which may not be enjoyed when served alone.

Treated in this way, without emphasizing their presence, and featuring the nutritious crust or dumplings, will make the whole dish acceptable.

For one person, halve the quantities for a dish to serve on two days. Double quantities will make 6 large servings.

As vegetables from home garden or allotment bring a variety of fresh produce in small quantities, substitute what you like for the listed vegetables.

Small white turnips or new potatoes, or radishes, will do well, using the frsh green tops of the turnips or radishes as a three-minute cooked extra vegetable.

Small zucchini squash, sliced a quarter-inch thick with the skin left on, gives a mellow touch if you leave out the tomatoes.

Glasses: To Be Seen In

Ask Jennifer

By JENNIFER ANDERSON

Glasses are no longer just for seeing; they're to be seen in. Finding flattering shapes and colors among the hundreds of different styles offered can present a dilemma. The perfect pair, heavy-duty or purely for fun, is now a fashion accessory.

Dear Jennifer: I see many women wearing glasses that are tinted, outsized and framed in pale plastic. They look great and I'd love to add some to my wardrobe.

I am most interested in sunglasses, but now it seems hard to tell the difference between those and prescription lenses. How con one choose a pair of glasses that are flattering? — Rita R.

Glasses are very definitely part of your beauty accessories, as important as eyeshadow and lipstick. They can provide an instant sophistication or a touch of glamor. Many celebrities have made them a trademark and are rarely seen without them.

Here are some tips on "framing up" in style:

—Frames today come in every imaginable color. The plastic are the most popular, but the wire frames done in gold, silver or colors are also attractive.

—Take advantage of the glasses that have co-ordinated coloring in the lenses — just as good as a wash of eyeshadow.

—For a mysteriously sexy look try the gradient lenses toned from light to dark. They shadow the eye without concealing it.

—Try some of the rimless glasses that are shaded by degrees for the naked-eye look. They come in deep or light tones and pastel shades as well. A must for any woman who doesn't have time to apply eye make-up.

—Add to your eyeglass wardrobe a great big pair of deeply tinted lenses and dark frames to hide behind on the days you feel you might need a disguise.

Now that you know the types available, the next step is to pick the type that is best for you. There are a few rules to keep in mind:

—Don't choose a pair of glasses that gives you a double eyebrow. Your brow should be just above or just behind the top of the frame.

—Make sure the pupil of the eye is centred in the exact middle of the lens.

Generally speaking, the opposite-shape frame to your face shape will work well for you. Of course, the oval-faced and regular-featured types can choose almost anything.

—Round faces should try a square- or octagonal-shape frame.

—Square faces look best in round frames.

—Oblong faces need width and can get it from plasses that have an upturned shape and extend beyond the face at the sides.

—Heart-shaped faces need an oval lens shape, while a pear-shaped face usually can wear an oval, too, but with an upturned line at eyebrow level.

When you make a decision on the color of the frames and lenses, make sure they fit in with your color scheme. Match the frames to hair color or eye color and make sure the tint in the lenses is toned to your skin shade.

Eye make-up is still important, especially if you go for the sexy graduated-tint lenses. Use a thin eyeliner with lots of mascara. Don't forget to shade under the lower lashes at the outside corner of the eye.

GARDENING

Ready for This? Fall Bulb Time

Though summer weather is only now becoming noticeable, the seasons do not wait upon weather. Nor do our plants. Unfailingly, these products of nature — seasons and plants — move towards fall. And fall is bulb planting time here in the north temperate zones.

But even before fall, gardenrers must plan on putting into their gardens the bulbs which bloom in fall, for in climates of mild winters several lovely kinds begin flowering at the end of August. They continue through much of September as the length of daylight gets less and temperatures are slightly lower.

Colchicums are fall blooming bulbs having large, solid roots resembling tulip bulbs in appearance, and producing flowers with a few days of planting. To complicate matters, the flowers look like giant crocuses yet are not even related to crocus.

There is no valid common name for Colchicum, for the first true fall crocuses make their debut in September and only confusion results when gardeners refer to Colchicums as fall crocuses.

Beautiful as they are in their unreal simplicity of form and frailty of pink lavender color, Colchicum flowers are happilly anticipated by all of us who look upon change as part of the life cycle. Fall must come if we are to experience the renewal of spring. What better harbinger of fall could we have than Colchicums?

New gardeners with but few permanent plants to bridge the season from late summer to spring with find perennial pleasure from the purchase of a dozen Colchicum bulbs. Planted into a patch of bare ground with any kind of shrub as background, the flowers will be the annual miracle as they thrust their pointed noses through the dry late August soil.

Discovering that it is indeed the tip of each closed flower that emerges without protection of a calyx or leaf sheath strengthens the sense of miracle. And no leaves appear until early spring.

I have heard some gardeners describe Colchicum leaves as "great cabbagy things." They are handsome and dark green, arising straight from the soil without stems. They grow to 12 or 14 inches in length and five inches or so wide. In a patch by themselves they are a fine spring decoration.

Only with the aid of these big leaves are the bulbs able to gather food in sufficient quantities to produce the many large blooms which rise from each full sized bulb every year.

The leaves become limp suddenly in the first week of June and yellow by June 15th unfailingly. Then the gardener is happy to cut them off, and have the empty piece of ground for just about 10 weeks before welcoming again the first lovely goblets of fall.

But before you have the flowers you must plant the bulbs, by early August.

Look for bulbs of Colchicums during the next few weeks and enjoy them for the rest of your gardening life.

There is some one who misses you sadly,
And finds the time long since you went,
There is some one who thinks of you always,
And tries to be brave
and content.
Gone is the face we loved
so dear,
Silent the voice we loved
'Tis sad, but true,
we wonder why,

ICBC Fraud

Investigators for Insurance Corp. of B.C. are looking into 75 potentially fraudulent insurance claims that cover "a whole range of circumstances," a spokesman said today.

ICBC has a special investigation unit that looks at all claims with an element of uncertainty, ranging from incomplete information to "very suspicious circumstances" including fire and theft losses.

In the first three months of 1976 there were 931 claim files searched and from last September to the end of May there have ben 29 convictions for fraud with a further 38 charges pending before the courts, reports general manger Norman Bortnick.

The corporation did not break down frauds by geographical area or between private and commercial operators.

Detroit Mafia Slayings

DETROIT (AP) — Two men were in custody today following the Sunday night slayings of three reputed Detroit Mafia figures in the basement of the home of one victim.

Police say they are looking for a motive in the shooting deaths of Frank (Rah-Rah) Randazzo, 62, and Joseph Seregusa, 66, both of Detroit; and Nick Ditta, 69, of St. Clair Shores.

Police said they found the bodies of Randazzo and Seregusa in the basement of Randazzo's home on the city's east side. Both were shot in the chest.

Ditta, although wounded, managed to climb the basement stairs and call police. He died a short time later.

Police said the suspects were arrested when they went to a hospital in Madison Heights for treatment of minor stab wounds. Police said one explained he had been in a fight and had "killed someone." Hospital officials called police.

The suspects' names were not released by police.

Jobless Laid To Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Union of Public Employees has condemned the federal government for tolerating a national unemployment rate of 7.1 per cent.

In a statement issued after CUPE's national executive meeting this weekend, harsh criticism was also levelled by the 220,000-member union at what it called government cuts on programs encouraging employment and Ottawa's lack of concerted effort in trying to find solutions to the unemployment problem.

"A government that tolerates a staggering unemployment rate without even a twinge of conscience is really cheating the country's population," the statement said.

Fill Halt Requested

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C.Wildlife Federation has written provincial water rights comptroller Howard Debeck, asking him to issue an order under the water rights act to stop Nu-West Development Corp. Ltd. from filling in sloughs at Lulu Island, according to executive direetor Will Paulik.

Sasquatch Enigma Revived Again

N.Y. Times

THE DALLES, Ore. — Within the vast forest wilderness of the Pacific Northwest, there may live a species of shy, furry man-like creatures, perhaps declining survivors from a time before modern man evolved.

And then again there may not.

A remarkable body of evidence has been gathered over the last few years that points either to the reality of a species of large primates known as Bigfoot or Sasquatch that walks on two legs or to a long series of hallucinations and extraordinary hoaxes executed with anatomical and ecological expertise.

The evidence has persuaded at least one physical anthropologist of international standing that the Sasquatch phenomenon of footprints and sightings is real and in need of further study.

While "monster" hunting is pursued by little more than weekend amateurs, one of the few exceptions is Peter Byrne, a 50-year-old former professional hunter in Nepal, who switched from tiger shooting and hunting for the abominable snowman to tiger conservation and hunting for the Bigfoot.

He operates the modest Bigfoot Information Centre here in The Dallas, a small town in the heart of Bigfoot country, and he describes himsel fas the "only man alive who has made a profession out of this extraordinary search."

He has been doing it for five years, supported by admission fees to a small exhibit here and by small donations from various sources, including the Academy of Applied Sciences.

The centre receives reports of Sasquatch sightings or of 16-inch footprints from all over the Northwest and investigates each report using a network of volunteers.

Most are eventually discounted as insubstantial or faked, but a handful hold up and are given high credibility. So far Byrne, though he has never seen a Bigfoot himself has collected the details of 94 reported sightings that seem believable. There are many more reports of tracks.

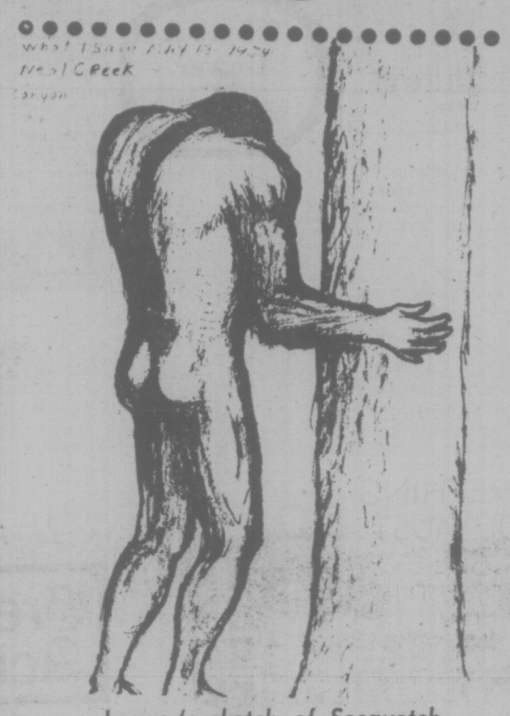
An example was that of Jack Cochran, a logger from nearby Parksdale, who on May 12, 1974, was working with a crew in the Hood River National Forest. Cochran, who operates a crane that picks up logs, was taking a break in the cab of the crane and happened to look across the clearing. Fifty yards away he says he saw "this big hairy thing" standing silently.

When he determined that it was not one of his co-workers, Cochran, a hunter and amateur artist who sketches wildlife, studied the creature. He said it was covered with thick black hair and stood about six and a half feet tall and had massive shoulders. He immediately assumed it to be a Bigfoot and not any of the other forest animals that he knew well.

Then it walked away "gracefully, like an athlete," and disappeared over a hill into the trees.

The next day, May 13, at about the same time, 10 a.m., the same loggers were again taking a break. Cochran's two companions said they were startled to see a big creature rise up out of the bushes and stride quickly away on two legs.

Later investigators from the Bigfoot Information Centre conducted a thorough search of the area. They found the creature's track — in distinct impressions of a soft but heavy foot leading from the edge of the clearing off across some wooded hills.



Logger's sketch of Sasquatch

In virtually all Sasquatch reports the creature does not charge or roar or act ferocious in any way. In report after report the animal simply walks along or watches people until it senses it has been seen and then it walks away.

While newspaper accounts frequently make it appear that a Bigfoot report involves only a single, large blurry footprint, the more typical discovery is of a long track of footprints that can sometimes be followed for miles.

Dr. John Napier, a British anthropologist who is a specialist in the anatomy of ape and human feet, has for 20 years studied yeti and Sasquatch footprints, many of which have been photographed or cast in plaster of Paris.

Although it is often said that bears made the prints, the bears of the Pacific Northwest are too small to make a print more than half the size ascribed to the Sasquatch.

What about a hoaxer who carves big feet, straps them on his boots and tramps off through the woods? Napier says this would be easy to spot for the fake foot would not flex or conform to the ground the way a real striding foot does.

In Napier's view one of the most persuasive sets of footprints was found in 1969 near Bossburg, Wash. The half-mile-long track contained 1,089 prints, and the right prints appear to have been made by a crippled foot. At one point whatever made the prints stepped easily over a 43-inch-high fence.

If the Bigfoot exists, why has no one reported finding bones? Byrne and others point out that the bones of any species do not last long on the forest floor. Scavengers quickly break them up, and the acid soil of the forest is not conducive to fossilization. Even the bones of deer or bear, both common in these parts, are seldom found.

Byrne's dream is to turn his shoestring operation into a full-fledged scientific research program using a network of baited automatic cameras and making a variety of ecological and detailed floral and fauna surveys of Bigfoot areas to look for common environmental features.

'Rescuer' A Rapist

NEW YORK (AP) — An 18-year-old woman was raped in Central Park by a man who discovered her bound and gagged in some bushes where she had been abandoned an hour earlier by a gang of youths who robbed her, police said.

The woman was strolling through the park with a male companion, and they were robbed by four youths who stripped them, then tied them up.

An hour passed and neither could struggle free of the bonds. A man came by and, police said, dragged the woman away, then raped her.

Near dawn, about six hours after the initial attack, the young man worked his way free, found the woman and took her to a police station.

Hunt Scheduled Near Bella Coola

PORTLAND (UPI) — A new, secrecy-shrouded expedition is off to the wilds of British Columbia near Bella Coola looking for the mysterious Sasquatch or "big foot" — an ugly, hair monster with great black eyes and monumental footprints.

Members of the secret safari, triggered by a report from an Indian fisherman who said he spotted footprints 17 inches land, hpe to capture the monster, tranquilize it and plant a radio in it to track its movements.

There may be more big foot footprints — most measuring from 16 to 20 inches — cast in plaster by those in pursuit of the legendary humanoid type creature than there are prints of famous movie stars at Grauman's Chinese Theatre in Hollywood.

There may have been more reported human sightings of these creatures in recent years from Northern California to British Columbia than sightings of UFOs.

No one has ever caught one. Pictures of footprints have been made but no one has ever taken an authenticated photograph of "big foot" itself.

But big foot already has been the "star" of one movie and is the subject of at least one book and many news stories.

Secrecy is the watchword of the new expedition.

"We don't want the news media to go charging up there and ruin everything," said Ron Olson of Eugene, director of North American Wildlife Research, a private organization with an aim of finding a real Sasquatch.

Olson said that Roy Lack of Astoria, Ore., is leading the new expedition, which was triggered by a report from an Indian fisherman who said he had seen foot tracks almost 17 inches long.

Olson delined to name the fisherman and exact place where the tracks were reported sighted. But he did say the search is being conducted in the Kaone Peak area, 40 to 50 miles north of Bella Coola.

"The fisherman told Lack he was fishing in a stream when he heard some grunting noises in the trees and brush popping," Olson said. "The fisherman said the noises followed him for about 12 miles, and then he found the big footprints."

ROOSTER HAD NINE HEARTS

MOSCOW (UPI) — While cleaning a rooster, cooks in the Ukrainian city of Dnepropetrovsk found it had nine hearts and three livers, the newspaper Trud reported Sunday.

A farmer had noticed that the rooster was unusually heavy and extraordinarily feisty, the paper said. It added that the hearts were arranged like grapes on a single stem.

Lang's 'Ram' Stirs Nasty Letters

OTTAWA (CP) — "I think you plan to ram this down our throats like anything else your friends in Quebec want," runs a typical letter to Transport Minister Otto Lang on the subject of bilingual air traffic control.

The issue has stirred emotions across the country and resulted in a flood of 1,000 letters and telegrams to Lang's office, mostly in the last month. Ninety per cent are from English Canada and almost to a man they attack the policies of bilingualism and Lang, often in vicious terms.

"Otto Lang is an RC frog lover," reads one unsigned note scrawled on the top of a transport department advertisement on the air traffic control issue clipped from a newspaper, and sent to Lang, a Roman Catholic.

An elderly woman from Vancouver writes, in less harsh language: "I, along with many others here are very upset over this controversy of mixing up a universal language with Quebec French."

"It's common knowledge that the French are an excitable people and where there is life at stake, simplicity must be first, last and always," the letter continues.

After a search, Pierre Deniger, an aide to the minister, found one letter favoring Lang's position. "I don't remember any others."

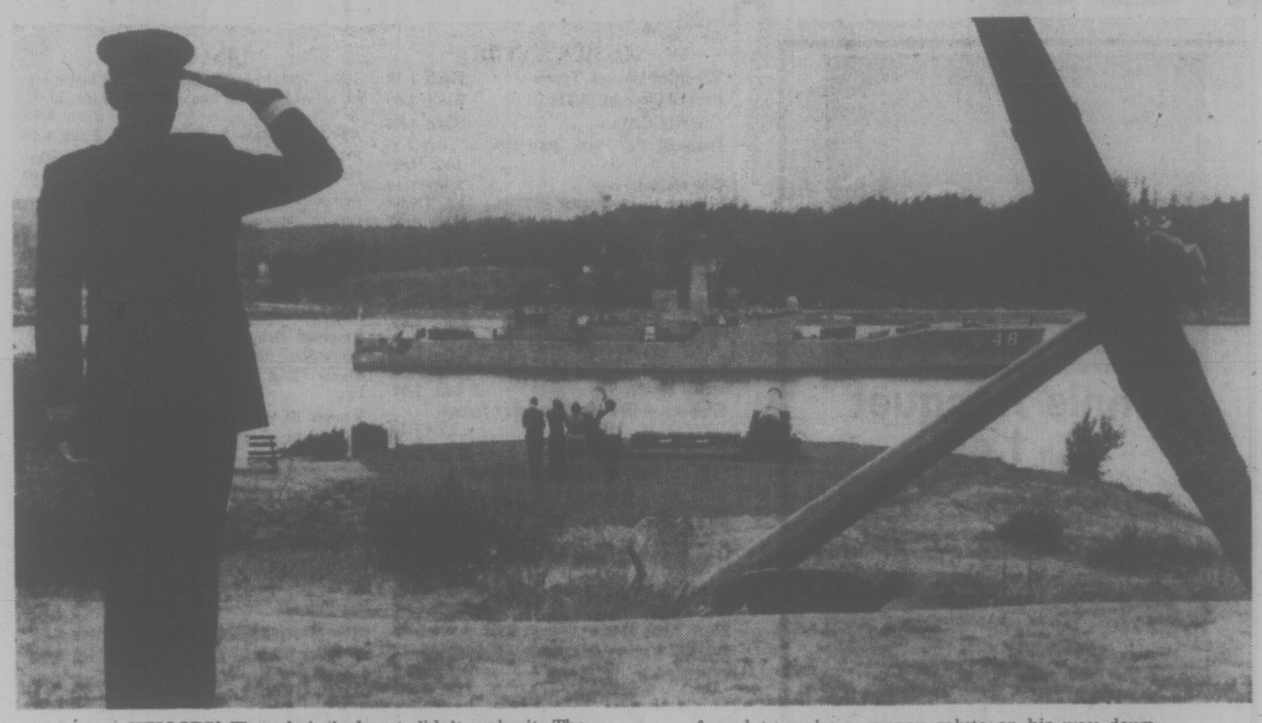
The brief letter on the stationery of the classics department of the University of British Columbia says in part: "whatever compromises are necessary, I hope you will not relax your ultimate goal."

Of the French-language letters received, most criticize the agreement which ended the nine-day work disruption by pilots and controllers on the issue.

Deniger says the largest number of letters came from British Columbia with Ontario second. Few came from the Maritimes.

One handwritten note on the bottom of a newspaper clipping refers to the Battle of the Plains of Abraham in 1759, where British forces defeated the French and New France became a British colony.

"The Plains are still in Quetime they want to make it two out of three, we're ready."



WHOOPS! The admiral almost didn't make it. The Australian destroyer-escort, HMAS Stuart, visiting Victoria until Tuesday, arrived five minutes too early Friday morning and Rear-Admiral Andrew Collier, commander maritime forces Pacific, was forced to make a snappy salute on his way down to the saluting station. The Stuart, commanded by Cmdr. C. M. G. Hole, is tied up in the dockyard of CFB Esquimalt

Fouling Crime, UN Says

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — Any nation causing massive pollution of the atmosphere or the seas is guilty of an international crime, the United Nations International Law Commission unanimously decided today.

The commission, comprising top legal experts from 25 countries, also agreed that it is an international crime for any country to practice slavery, genocide or apartheid.

Commission officials said they expect little opposition to the decision of slavery, genocide and apartheid as these have all been termed crimes by the UN General Assembly.

But the listing of pollution could lead to heated debate in the 6th (legal) committee of the General Assembly because it could among other things involve atmospheric nuclear explosions, the officials say.

The commission, after several years of discussion, reached agreement on an article on international crimes in the 10th week of a 12-week session which ends July 23.

The draft article, which has to be approved by the General Assembly, said any breach of an international obligation is an "internationally wrongful act."

If the obligation is one essential for the protection of the fundamental interests of the international community as a whole, its violation constitutes an international crime, the commission decided.

The commission is mainly a drafting body. Any violations would be taken up primarily by the UN Security Council.

Open War on Mosquitoes As Encephalitis Spreads

Authorities in several provinces are stepping up measures against mosquito-carried encephalitis, a brain disease which last summer killed five persons and affected 100 others in Ontario.

Up until well into July, there had been no recurrence of last year's sudden strike, according to a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press.

Ontario was enlisting two provincial departments and scores of municipalities in the precautionary fight, while the western provinces were continuing programs of previous years with varying degrees of intensity.

Manitoba's main concern was with a species of encephalitis virus which attacks horses. Sizable numbers of insects carrying this strain have been found in Winnipeg.

The five eastern provinces have been free of the disease and no special measures were being taken except in the big Canadian Forces Base Gagetown in New Brunswick.

Encephalitis is an inflammation of the brain which produces a wide variety of symptoms ranging from convulsions to loss of speech and inability to think clearly. It also produces drowiness—it's sometimes called sleeping sickness— and victims may sleep up to 36 hours. Others suffer extreme pain.

The variety that hit Ontario in 1975 is called St. Louis encephalitis—virologists call it SLE—and is carried by a mosquito named Culex pipiens. The carrier of equine encephalitis is Culex tarsalis.

Normally, say health officials, the chance that a mosquito bite on a human will be from Culex pipiens is remote. The virus carrying insect is far outnumbered by about 48 other varieties in Canada.

Culex pipiens customarily feeds off birds, which have picked up the disease on their migration to southern climes. Only the female mosquito feeds this way. When she pricks a human with her needle-nose, she squirts in a tiny amount of a fluid that keeps the blood from coagulating and blocking the tube, and that is when the deadly virus is transmitted.

It is only when a long, hot and wet summer spell produces so many Culex pipiens that they cannot find enough birds to feed on that they turn to humans. That's what happened in Ontario last summer.

This year, the Ontario health and environment departments, working through municipalities, are participating in anti-encephalitis programs in 55 municipalities in the southern part of the province.

It started with a surveillance program aimed at defining the types of mosquitoes prevalent in different localities. Blood samples have been taken from humuns in various areas, which officials say tend to confirm that last year's outbreak was confined to the southwest part of the province.

"Sentinel" flocks of poultry have been established in several places. If their blood tests showed antibodies that fight the encephalitis virus, that would mean the disease was present. But up to early July, none was found.

Provincial officials also have been keeping in touch with authorities in Georgia, where mosquito-carried encephalitis is endemic, and reports from there say that prevalence of the disease has been about normal.

"If there had been an increase, we'd be a little anxious," said Dr. William Best, chief of epidemiology services for the Ontario health department.

The provincial environment department has been conducting training sessions for municipal employees engaged in a larvae-killing program against the virus-carrying insects. The province is meeting 75 per cent of the cost of the municipally-conducted attack.

There has been some complaint from environmentalist groups that a larvae-killer recommended by the Ontario ministry might be harmful to humans, but government officials say there is nothing to worry about on that score.

The pesticide—Abate—has passed federal tests for registration for use, and one field test by the provincial environment department has indicated that a human would have to eat about 17 pounds of it before coming to harm.

However, as a precaution, Ontario pesticide experts recommend that people be kept away from mosquito-breeding areas for 48 hours after they have been treated.

In Manitoba, protests by environmentalists last year delayed spraying—particularly in Winnipeg—for most of the summer until the province declared a state of emergency against equine encephalitis in the last half of August. This year, no opposition has developed.

A seven-day "fogging" program with insecticide was launched in Winnipeg in July. Sentinel chicken flocks were set out in 20 other areas, but early checks disclosed no infected insects.

Measures in other western provinces:

Alberta: The provincial government is continuing a longstanding program with guidelines laid down for municipal participation. Between 30 and 35 local programs were expected, compared with 25 in 1975. Past experiece has shown most vulnerability in the southeast section, hit by outbreaks in 1965 and 1968.

British Columbia: Spraying programs of past years are being continued, by plane in large areas and by hand elsewhere. Main areas were the Fraser Valley, east of Vancouver, and the Kamloops district. The Okanagan area was being watched closely because of previous outbreaks in horses, and inoculation of horses was being started.

Saskatchewan: There was an earlier mosquito hatch than usual and such animals as squirrels are showing high antibody levels, an indication that the virus is around. But provincial health officials say there have been worse situations without humans being affected. The provincial government has suggested routine precautions for householders.

NUMBER BETTER KNOWN

VANCOUVER (CP) — A joint survey by police and the engineering department has determined Vancouver's new 911 emergency number is better known to city residents than the old police, fire and ambulance numbers.

In an April survey, 62 per cent surveyed knew none of the old numbers. A second survey in mid-June showed 55 per cent of the residents knew the 911 number.

Hanford N-Plant Remains Idle

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) — The Hanford nuclear reactor, the second-largest nuclear-powered electricity generator in the United States, remains idle as a strike by Hanford Nuclear Reservation atomic workers enters its 11th week.

The reactor, which supplies steam to power two 430,000-kilowatt generators for the Washington Public Power Supply System, has been on line for only about 28 hours since April 16.

United Nuclear Industries Inc. operates the reactor for the federal Energy Research and Development Administration. In addition to steam, the 11-year-old plant produces plutonium for government weapons.

UNI shut down the reactor on April 16 when 18 of 19 reactor operators failed routine recertification tests on reactor theory and safety. The operators later re-took the tests and passed, and the reactor was started again on April 28.

UNI maintained throughout the shutdown that the operators deliberately failed the tests as a union bargaining tactic.

On April 30, the 2,070-member Hanford Atomic Metal Trades Council, whose membership includes the reactor operators, struck the four major federal contractors at Hanford — UNI, Atlantic Richfield Hanford Co., Westinghouse Hanford Co. and Battelle-Northwest Laboratory. The strike was called after HAMTC and contractor negotiators failed to reach an agreement in a wage dispute.

Success, with Excitement

SILVER DOLLAR, Ont. (CP) — Bob Syncox is an adventurer and entrepreneur who operates out of Northern Ontario and Barbados.

Although he describes Barbados as his home, he spends part of the year in Northern Ontario where he has a part interest in a small airlins company in Ignace, Ont., and a lodge 350 miles northeast of Kenora.

His wife and four children live in Barbados where he operates pleasure fishing boats.

The 34-year-old Northern Ontario native began as a bush pilot, learning to fly at 14 and says he flew for 13 years without a licence.

Seven years ago, he founded and built this community of 16 trailers, a hotel and liquor outlet—the only one within a 30-mile area including three mining camps and a provincial park, about 160 miles east of Kenora.

He said the store grossed $600,000 a year when he sold it last August.

One of his proudest accomplishments while in Silver Dollar involved providing meals for 250 workers from one of the nearby mining camps when the camp's kitchen was destroyed by fire.

Rising at 4 a.m., he started serving the first shift of workers, bused by the mining company at 6 a.m. To boil potatoes, he used half of an oil-can. He said he alone prepared and served the meals and ended the day at 10 p.m.

He recalls other tough times, including walking 16 miles to his camp in below-zero weather when his truck went off a road.

Last May he returned to the trailer camp to organize protection for six families he decided to figh ta forest fire after the ministry of natural resources issued an evacuation order.

"I just couldn't let it burn," he said.

Arriving 12 hours after the evacuation order was issued, Mr. Syncox again assumed his role as the unofficial guardian of Silver Dollar.

He sent one man to get a front-end loader from a construction site and went to borrow a bulldozer at a nearby logging camp.

Mr. Syncox said he politely asked a camp official for the bulldozer.

"But when he wouldn't give it to me, I told him I would steal it and that's what I did."

Anti-Inflation Act Legal, Court Rules

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada ruled today that the federal Anti-Inflation Act is constitutional.

The court made the decision in a 7 to 2 judgment: however it ruled that the Ottawa-Ontario anti-inflation agreement is unconstitutional.

The ruling against Ontario was unanimous at 9 to 0.

The judgments mean that Ottawa's anti-inflation program, which last fall placed the country under three-years of selective wage and price controls, is legal and will continue.

However the Ottawa-Ontario agreement, which placed provincial public servants under the wage jurisdiction of the federal anti-inflation board, is invalid.

This means that Ontario, now with a minority Progressive Conservative government, must have legislative approval for the agreement if it wants it to remain in effect.

The Anti-Inflation Act oversteps provincial powers outlined in the British North America Act, the country's constitution. However the BNA Act allows th is in emergency situations which require Ottawa to act to maintain peace, order and good government.

The key point in the constitutional argument was whether an emergency did exist when the anti-inflation program was introduced.

Chief Justice Bora Laskin, writing the majority decision, said Ottawa proceeded from legislative power bases which entitle it to wage war on inflation. He said the circumstances justified it using general power "to extend its embrace as it has done."

The chief justice said the act does not invade provincial legislative jurisdiction.

He said the court would be unjustified in concluding that Parliament did not have a rational basis for using a measure which "was temporarily necessary to meet a situation of economic crisis imperilling the well-being of the people of Canada as a whole and requiring Parliament's stern intervention in the interests of the country as a whole."

The fact that there may have been past periods of crisis in which similar action was not taken, was beside the point.

Inflation, he addded, is a monetary phenomenon and monetary policy is within the jurisdiction of the federal government. Also, Ottawa had the power to regulate trade and commerce.

The case arose last March when teachers in Renfrew, Ont., 70 miles west of Ottawa, challenged the Ottawa-Ontario agreement. They said Ontario enacted its side of the agreement by a cabinet order and did not get legislative approval.

Their lawyers argued that the agreement changes provincial wage laws, and this could be done only by passage of a bill.

Justice Minister Ron Basford, seeing that this challenge ultimately would drag the Anti-Inflation Act into the courts, decided to ask for an immediate high court review to save time and money.

The chief justice said the agreement imposes guides and sanctions on the provincial public service, "thereby altering the existing law of Ontario. . . ."

"I am unable to appreciate how the provincial executive . . . can accomplish such a change."

Newfoundland is in a similar position because it also

TRUDEAU: I'M HAPPY WITH THE RULING

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau entered a meeting with labor leaders today with new confidence following the Supreme Court decision that the Anti-Inflation Act is constitutional.

"I'm very happy," he told reporters on the way into a meeting on the economy with leaders of the two-million-member Canadian Labor Congress.

"Now that the court has decided, everyone will get behind the controls and make them work."

CLC president Joe Morris declined any immediate comment. The CLC, which has been fighting the selective wage and price controls program, was among those labor groups who appeared before the court to argue that the law was unconstitutional.

IOC Accepts Proposal For Taiwan

MONTREAL (CP) — The International Olympic Committee executive board bowed Sunday to the Canadian government's demand that Taiwanese athletes not be allowed to compete in the summer Games under the name of the Republic of China.

The executive recommended that the 75 members of the IOC, who are to meet Tuesday in general assembly here, accept a proposal that Taiwan athletes compete under the Olympic flag rather than their own in the Games, which begin Saturday.

But the Taiwanese have threatened to pull out of the Games if the recommendation is accepted.

IOC President Lord Killanin told a news conference that "this is an extremely unfortunate day in Olympic history and I'm sorry that it had to happen at the beginning of the Montreal Games."

Glen Shortliffe, special assistant to the external affairs minister, said in Ottawa Sunday night that "we are very pleased that the IOC executive board has found a solution the board feels is consistent with its aims and which is satisfactory to Canada."

However, some Olympic officials in Montreal expressed bitter feelings.

Harold Wright, president of the Canadian Olympic Association, said: "This is the blackest day in Canada's history.

"We welcome the youth of any country into the Olympic movement, but not the politicians."

Philip Krumm, president of the United States Olympic Association, said a "cold and caculating look" will be taken at whether his country's athletes will participate in the Montreal Games following the IOC board's decision.

Meanwhile, a possible boycott of the Games by African countries gained momentum Sunday when Mauritius became the second member of the Organization of African Unity OAU to announce it will not participate because of New Zealand's presence.

OLYMPIC TV WALK OUT

MONTREAL (CP) — Technicians of Teleglobe Canada walked off the job today in a strike which could affect transmission of Olympic television and radio programs to areas outside North America.

Union officials said about 350 technicians walked off the job for at least 24 hours, and warned that the strike may be extended indefinitely if the company does not reopen talks.

Not all the problems connected with the Olympic Games in Montreal are of the political variety. For instance, officials are worried about a leak in the swimming pool — in the roof — and won't know if it is repaired until heavy rain falls. Page 14.

Mike Taafe, somewhat of a forgotten man this season in the outfield of Victoria Bates, banged out seven hits to help Bates sweep four weekend games in the Pacific Coast Men's Fastball League and all but clinch first place. Page 14.

Another Victorian, John Alexander, won two events at the Canadian closed rowing championships in Ontario and two University of Victoria players helped British Columbia to the national junior rugby championship at Winnipeg. Page 13.

George Knudson made it three victories in four starts on the Canadian professional golf tour Sunday when he steadied his game on the last nine holes and edged Kelowna's Dave Barr to win his fourth Canadian Professional Golfers' Association title. Page 15.

Sandra Palmer and JoAnne Carner were playing off today for the U.S. women's Open championship after finishing in a deadlock Sunday after 72 holes; and New Zealander John Lister became the first foreign player to win this year on the U.S. men's golf tour. Page 15.

OUT OF SITE souvenir of the Olympic Stadium is examined by Rosemary McCracken in Montreal. Enterprising promoter Morton Shermen got his hands on excess concrete chunks left over by construction crews and turned them into a profit by boxing pieces and selling them for $2.98.

Chiefs Fret Over Chases

The question of high-speed police chases will likely be discussed this September by B.C. police chiefs.

The issue has come into focus as a result of the death of an elderly motorist whose car was struck by a speeding police cruiser.

A provincial investigation is being carried out into the death.

Victoria police chief John Gregory said today the topic is expected to be on the agenda of the B.C. Association of Chief Constables when they meet in Kamloops.

Gregory's announcement came as four urban police departments were canvassed on their policy regarding high speed chases.

The concensus: police from all of the departments are urged to use their common sense and discretion to avoid endangering life and limb.

Gregory said his officers are required to follow the Motor Vehicle Act in the operation of emergency vehicles, and to use their common sense if a potential pursuit confronts them.

"Beyond that I don't think we've done studies or compared (ours) with other policies.

"If we say there will be no high speed chases, all a criminal has to do is speed up and get away . . . If you capture a criminal without anyone getting hurt you're a hero; if you don't you're a bum," Gregory said.

Deputy Chief Rick Avison, of Saanich, said pursuits at high speed are "a logical thing. We don't encourage it, but it's up to a man's discretion. We would naturally require assistance and roadblocks, with the co-operation of other departments and upisland RCMP detachments."

Saanich has both the Trans-Canada Highway and Patricia Bay Highway to contend with in its boundaries, offering greater opportunity for high speed pursuits.

Avison said with arrangements between departments it is no longer an expected thing for a police car to pursue an

KILLER FOR $50?

OTTAWA (CP) — Simma Holt told the Commons today that the cost of hiring a paid killer in Vancouver has diminished in the last decade along with the threat of state execution as a punishment for murder.

During the 1950s and 1960s the cost of hiring a contract murderer ranged from $2,000 to $2,500. But a killer now will do the job for between $50 and $500, she said.

Amin Cuts Arab Ties, Seeks Israeli Links

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Ugandan President Idi Amin, praising the Israeli raid on Entebbe Airport as a "very good" military operation, says he has severed his ties with Arab guerrilla groups, an Israeli newspaper reported.

The newspaper Ma'Ariv said Sunday Amin made the remarks in a telephone call Friday to his former military adviser, reserve Col. Baruch Bar Lev.

"Not as a politician but as a professional army man, I must tell you that the (Israeli) army) action was very good," Amin was quoted as saying. "Your commando is very good."

Amin reportedly said he has cut off relations with the guerrilla organizations because of complications arising from the Entebbe hijack drama.

"I don't want anything to do with them," he told Bar Lev, according to Ma'Ariv. "You can tell (Premier Yitzhak) Rabin and the Israeli government that I have cut off relations with them and I am going to announce this to the press."

Israeli officials said on the weekend at least two guerrillas involved in the hijacking were close associates of international terrorist Ilich Ramirez Sanchez, also known as "Carlos."

The officials said Wadih Haddad, operations chief of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, masterminded the June 27.

Meanwhile in London, several members of Parliament attacked the U.K. government today for sending a message of condolence to Amin last week on the deaths of 20 Ugandan soldiers killed.

Wanted Man Shot By Police

An armed man wanted on a Canada-wide warrant for a weapons charge died in a hail of gunfire Saturday night during a confrontation with RCMP following a high-speed car chase.

Peter Patrick Turchak, 36, died of a gunshot wound to the upper chest, but it was not clear whether he actually fired at police. Officers recovered two shotguns and a .30-30 rifle from Turchak's car.

"They (the pursuing officers) were aware that he was in possession of a weapon, I'll say that at least," an RCMP spokesman said Sunday. "Wheter he (Turchak) fired or not will be very important later on."

Turchak had tried to outdistance Constable H. G. Gorsline, 25, in an RCMP freeway patrol car after the officer attempted to stop him for speeding on Highway 99. The chase reached speeds of 100 m.p.h.

The suspect vehicle left the freeway and eventually turned into a dead-end street in a subdivision in this municipality south of Vancouver.

BILINGUAL BY '78

MONTREAL (CP) — The aim of the federal transport department is to have full bilingual air traffic control in Quebec by the end of 1978, Transport Minister Otto Lang said during the weekend.

Speaking on radio station CFCF, Lang said a full bilingual force would be "sufficiently complicated and could involve slightly different working conditions."

Members of Canadian Air Traffic Control Association oppose implementation of bilingualism on the grounds it constitutes a safety hazard.

"The problem involves personal relationships among people working together," he said. "And even now if I do anything that makes one group smile I can be assured the other will be frowning."

The Elderly: Age Brings Happiness to Most

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

They are retired and almost all of them like it, most own their own homes, worry about money, are satisfied with social services and split between Social Credit and NDP.

A random sampling of opinions from senior citizens across B.C. earlier this year by a team of sociologists from the University of Victoria produced this general picture as well as other details.

Focus of the survey, compiled from 730 completed questionnaires, was the seniors' view of social services available to them. The report was prepared by sociologists Daniel Koenig, Trevor Proverbs and Cassie Doyle.

Nine out of 10 respondents said they were satisfied with accessability of local shopping, 89 per cent with medical and hospital facilities, 87 per cent were satisfied with churches, 74 per cent with activity centres for senior citizens and 69 per cent with cultural facilities and transportation services.

A whopping 94 per cent of them reported they were satisfied with their lives as a whole.

While senior citizen centres were available to three out of four respondents, they were being used by only one out of three answering the questionnaire. Principal reasons given for not using the centres were: not knowing people there, difficulty in getting there, not liking the activities and not enough money.

Telephone contact service, available to 43 per cent, was used by 16 per cent. Meals on wheels, available to 56 per cent, was used by 7 per cent of the sample and homemaker services available to 47 per cent was used by 8 per cent.

On the question of government support for various services, the seniors ranked subsidies for housing and meals on wheels as most important.

Similarly almost three-quarters of those replying owned their own home, 14 per cent rented, 8 per cent lived with relatives and the remaining 3 per cent in retirement homes.

Financially, 69 per cent of seniors figured their standard of living had stayed about the same over the past few years. Their average monthly budget was $387 and they estimated they would need another $118 a month to comfortably meet their various expenses.

Of the 85 per cent who held pharmacare cards, cost of their prescriptions averaged $7 a month.

Political party identification divided this way: provincially 31.4 per cent preferred Social Credit, 29.2 per cent the NDP, 8.9 per cent the Progressive Conservatives and 5.5 per cent the Liberals. Federally, 31.9 per cent preferred the Conservatives, 19.5 per cent the NDP, 15.9 per cent the Liberals, 6.4 per cent Social Credit.

A beautiful setting ... "but most don't even know it exists."

Tourists Love Helmcken House ... But Where Are Victorians?

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Folks from other parts of Canada and visitors from the United States seem to know more about Helmcken House and its history and contents than Victorians.

At least the curator of the provincial historic house believes so — and he has figures to prove it.

Of an estimated 22,000 people who visited the house tucked away on Elliott Street and abutting Thunderbird Park in 1975, not more than 2,000 were from Victoria, Marjorie Pettigrew observed.

"It's not that residents don't appreciate this museum," she said. "It's because, I'm sure, most people don't know where it is, and don't even know it exists."

She blamed the lack of directional signs to the house for this.

"Even the directional sign which people saw if they came out of the exit door of the museum, has been taken down," she said. "One visitor told me he first thought the house was a private club."

She said many visitors have told her they heard of Helmcken House through friends who had visited the home.

"It is certainly not advertising that brings them here by the thousands," she said. "There isn't any."

Mrs. Pettigrew is anxious for more Victorians to visit the house because, she says, "it has an important story to tell — it is a monument to man who played an important part in the history of the city and the province."

Built in 1852, the house hasn't changed much since the days when the pioneer doctor and a member of the first legislative assembly on Vancouver Island entertained friends to discuss the future of the then crown colony of Vancouver Island.

It was probably here that he made his decision to support the entry of British Columbia into confederation and wrote most of the terms of the union.

The rooms and their contents tell much about the man, and his wife, Cecilia, oldest daughter of Governor James Douglas.

There's his bed, in which he died in 1921 at the age of 96, and his sea chest — a reminder that Helmcken came to Victoria from London via the Horn.

In another room there is his medical chest, plus his surgical instruments.

At one time, more of Helmcken's belongings, as well as those of his wife, were on display in the house, but a theft in 1970 resulted in the removal of some of the more valuable items.

Mrs. Pettigrew recalled that one of the stolen items was the doctor's pipe rack with an attractive hand-carved wooden chain attached.

"We now have to tie things down or put them under glass," she said.

She said the more a person lingers about the house and examines the memorabilia, the more Helmcken's portrait comes into focus.

There is certainly nothing grandiose or pretentious about the house or its Victoria furnishings.

It reflects a man who did not seek power or fame, but worked for the well-being of the people.

But outside the house is a badly worded government plaque to commemorate the historic house.

It states that Helmchken was "a spokesman for those who thought Canada was too distant to make a union practical" and goes on to suggest that a trip across the U.S. showed him that union was possible.

Some visitors have interpreted this to mean that Helmcken was pro-American and pro-union with the United States. He was the very opposite.

And there is another mistake. The plaque states he was born in 1825 when it was actually 1824.

Victoria Housing Starts Up 100%

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Housing starts in the Greater Victoria area were up more than 100 per cent during the first six months of this year and applications continue to come in during July despite the construction labor dispute.

There were 2,470 housing starts from Dec. 31 to June 30 this year, up from 1,146 in the corresponding 1975 period.

Most of the increase was in apartment units. While single family home starts increased to 660 from 400, apartment construction soared and 1,572 units were started in 1976, compared with only 716 in the same six months last year.

In addition, 142 row units were started this year, up from 65, and 96 duplex units were started, up from 12.

For each month in 1976 the starts were higher than in the corresponding month a year ago. The June total was 301, up 50 per cent from 203.

The consrtuction lockout might delay the start of some large apartment projects but smaller buildings and all single family homes are expected to proceed.

Smaller construction companies tend to be non-union.

Municipal building inspectors report applications for building permits are coming in at normal volumes so far in July.

One result of Victoria's building boom is a surplus of condominium units across the urban area.

At the beginning of July there were 144 unsold new condominiums on the market.

Of this total, 107 were in Victoria City, 19 in Saanich, 12 in Esquimalt and six in Oak Bay.

By contrast only 26 new rental apartment units were available at the beginning of July. There were 15 available in Victoria City and 11 in Esquim alt.

Construction of condominiums outnumbered rental units by a wide margin. While work was proceeding on 70 rental units in 1976, there were 443 condominium units being constructed.

The market was quite tight for single family homes. There were only 69 unsold new homes on July 1, down from 74 at the same time last year.

Of the 69 houses on the market, 68 were listed at $60,000 or more. The exception was a house in Central Saanich at $58,900.

One year ago, five new houses were on the market under $50,000 and another 35 were in the range of $50,000 to $60,000.

Almost all the single family homes are in Saanich. There were 59 in that municipality, seven unsold new houses in Central Saanich, two in Esquimalt and one in Oak Bay.

By contrast less than half the available single family homes were in Saanich one year ago.

At July 1, 1975, there were 34 of 74 single family homes available in Saanich, 16 in Central Saanich, six in Victoria City, four in Sidney and the remaining 14 were in other parts of the district.

ENGINEER QUITS

Deputy city engineer Derek Campbell doesn't like to be second man on the totem pole.

And for that reason he is giving up his $32,000 a year job with the city and entering into business of his own. He leaves Sept. 10.

Campbell, in an interview today, said he has already formed his business — Campbell Engineering Inc., incorporated April 13. He hopes to be involved in consultant work helping small municipalities or the provincial government with traffic problems.

For the first while he will be working out of his home, he said. His wife Irene has quit her job as a registered nurse to become his secretary and bookkeeper.

Now 42, Campbell came to Victoria 10 years ago to head the city's traffic department. A graduate of Yale University with a masters degree in engineering, he had been traffic engineer 4½ years in Calgary before arriving here.

Two years ago when the traffic section was amalgamated with the engineering department, John Sansom was appointed head. Campbell said he still feels bitter he wasn't chosen, adding, "I don't like to be second in command of anything."

He said there were no personality problems between his and Sansom but considered his deputy's job as a position without future or chance of promotion.

"When I was in charge of traffic there was always hope I'd make it as city engineer ... but now there isn't."

Besides, he said, the deputy's job was "too much paper work, and I'm not a paper pusher."

He noted that as deputy he set up works programs and supervised the activities of the engineering staff which numbers close to 300.

"Now," he added dryly, "I'll only have to supervise one person ... my wife."

Old Sigurdson Would Have Approved It

WE WERE POKING AROUND in the new forest northwest of Campbell River when we came on traces of an old logging works. Forty years of weather had reduced steel to rust and logs to grey shells through which the foot sank into reddish duff. But one massive timber bedded in waist-high brush had fared better against the assault of time.

It was part of a sled on which a donkey engine had been skidded from one setting to another. Although rot had eaten into its bulk, its top remained intact. That surface was almost as smooth as if it had been worked over by some giant plane.

Win took a picture of the relic that had survived from an earlier logging era. Later, we showed the print to a district old-timer.

He studied the picture closely. Then he cracked a slow grin.

"That'd be up where a creek come out of a lake," he said. "There was a bridge. Not a trestle, just three-four logs laid across. Sure ... I broad-axed that sled runner myself!"

I knew he had been a mighty man in the woods. But until he dropped his remark, I hadn't been aware that swinging a tool designed for heroes was among his skills. It was an accomplishment that demanded respect.

In the years before the chain saw arrived spitting and snarling on the coast logging claims, no camp lacked experts with axe and crosscut. With routine efficiency, the fallers would drop the tall green precisely where they intended it to land, and consider themselves shamed if they broke a tree. Their axes, formidable instruments with 48-inch handles and narrow bits honed to a shaving edge, were not tools for a tyro.

But the broad-axe was something else again, and a good broad-axe man was hard to find.

He was the master of a highly-specialized trade — a woodcarver who shaped logs with hair-splitting precision to meet all needs. His ponderous axe with its offset handle and extravagantly wide bit was so heavy that only a strong man could swing it, let alone guide it true to the mark. It looked uncommonly like the weapon with which executioners of old severed necks in the shadow of the Bloody Tower.

A broad-axe man knew his worth. He was an artist and a person of importance. I learned that as a water-boy to the gods on a highball show where the second-growth now hides the stumps.

Sigurdson, the camp broad-axe man, permitted me the honor of turning a grindstone for him under his finicky direction.

It was a warm evening. I sweated to keep the grindstone spinning just so while Sigurdson touched up his pet. I sluiced water from a cookhouse lard bucket on the stone at command ... "Easy, kid, you want to ruin the temper?" ... until the maestro was finally satisfied with his cutting edge.

Next day on scraps of stolen time, I watched him justify his reputation.

He was shaping a donkey sled, and to the casual eye, he appeared to be making a lazyman's job of it. His pace was unhurried. He swung so easily that his broad-axe appeared to fall of its own accord.

But the chips it threw were the size of dinner plates, and each storke landed with machine-like precision in the track of the one before it.

The runner that emerged from the log curved smoothly upward at either end to a flat top that would have stood the test of a straight-edge. It was a triumph of eye and hand, duplicated countless times over in woods where the axe was king.

I'm tempted to claim that the broad-axe man is an extinct species. This isn't necessarily so, however. Just last week at Campbell River's annual Salmon Festival, I happened upon convincing proof.

In one of the craft booths that had mushroomed overnight, a bearded young man offered hand-forged tools for sale. There were froes for cedar shake splitting, and scribers to be used in log cabin construction, and along with these, a broad-axe helved and edged to perfection.

Sigurdson would have approved it.

200 Years Ago Cook Sailed

From Poverty to Heroism

Two hundred years ago tonight at 8 Capt. James Cook sailed HMS Resolution out of the British naval port of Plymouth.

Crammed aboard the unimpressive ex-collier were 112 men, committed to close quarters for the lengthy voyage in which Cook would discover the Hawaiian Islands, the Pacific Northwest and become the first westerner to set foot in Nootka Sound.

With a beam of 36 feet and 5½-feet decks, the former coal-hauler was 109½-feet over-all.

Fittingly, today Premier Bill Bennett was to unveil a statue of Cook on the Inner Causeway, the only replica of the one that stands at Whitby, Cook's home town, in Yorkshire.

Among those to attend the ceremony was Robert Crawford, executive director of the Captain Cook Foundation in Altadena, Calif.

Born a Scot, Crawford says Cook exemplifies the heroes today's younger generation is seeking.

"He was an explorer and never fired a shot in war. He was not born with a silver spoon in his mouth. He was born in an earthen floor cabin, the son of a day laborer," Crawford said. "He taught himself navigation before he volunteered for the navy and was taken on as an able seaman."

One of Crawford's most precious belongings is a copy of the secret orders given to Cook by the Lords of the Admiralty before his departure. Secrecy was adviseable because of Britain's wars with France and Spain.

"The night before he (Cook) left he saw 60 three-decker ships leaving for the war with the colonies (later to become the United States) with Hessian mercenaries, horses and supplies aboard," Crawford said.

Making the voyage of exploration with Resolution was another ex-collier, HMS Discovery.

She met up with Resolution at the Cape of Good Hope. Her sailing had been delayed because her master, Capt. Clerke, was serving 30 days in a debtor's prison in London on behalf of his brother.

A former U.S. air force officer, Crawford said Cook is his idol because of his ability as a navigator, scientist and explorer ... but mostly because of his skill as a leader of men.

Copies of documents obtained by Cook's foundation show that even when the United States was struggling to gain her independence from Britain, Benjamin Franklin had intervened on Cook's behalf.

"Benjamin Franklin wrote to the French government when he was an ambassador in 1779 and the French had the English Channel blockaded. He asked them to let these two old battered ships through because they had been on a scientific mission for the good of all mankind," Crawford reported.

On the 200th anniversary of Cook's setting to sea, Crawford recalled that it would be 586 days before Cook would step ashore at Nootka Sound.

On his way, one of the last places Cook had named before reaching the sound was Cape Flattery, at the mouth of the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

Crawford said that now that Victoria has set a precedent and installed a replica of the Whitby stature plans are being considered to have a similar one made for Hawaii.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you tell me the birthdate of the famous Hawaiian singer Don Ho. S.H.

A. Ho was born in Hawaii on Aug. 13, 1930.

Q. Has Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova of the Unitarian Service Committee ever been singularly honored by the Canadian government? For example is she on any honors list? Is she a Canadian citizen? And how long as she been involved with U.S.C.? G.P.

A. Dr. Hitschmanova founded U.S.C. in 1945 and has been the major figure in the movement ever since. Our records fail to show that she has ever been honored by the Canadian government nor whether or not she is a Canadian citizen. If you wish to pursue the matter you could write to her at the U.S.C. headquarters at 56 Sparks Street in Ottawa.
